Disappearing From the High Ground

This is today's sad facade of the best known landmark in the Catskill Mountains, which has started to disappear slowly from the spot where it has weathered a century. It is a view of the rear of the old Catskill Mountain House which in its golden days attracted as guests prominent persons from all areas of the nation and some from abroad. It is being razed by sections, and plans for the future of the site now appear indefinite. The building, near North Lake, is more than 2,000 feet above the Hudson Valley. (Freeman photo)

Sub-Structure Bids Signal Bridge Action

Former PW Says Buddy Tipped Plan

Virginian Says He Heard Dickenson Inform on Him—Was Asked for Names

Washington, April 20 (AP)—A former prisoner of war swore today that his plans to escape from a Korean prison camp were tipped off to his jailers by Cpl. Edward S. Dickenson.

The witness, Cpl. Thomas A. Carrick of Blacksburg, Va., said at the opening of the second day of Dickenson's court martial that he overheard the defendant inform on him. Carrick said he listened through a paper door at the prison camp.

This testimony sent opposing counsel into a vigorous debate on the admissibility of Carrick's testimony. Guy Emery, defense attorney, drew from Carrick on cross examination that he hal also overheard Dickenson confess that he, himself, was planning an escape.

Asked why he had not mentioned this fact, the witness said:

"I try to forget things, sir."

Carrick said he was in a foxhole with Dickenson just before both were captured Nov. 5, 1950.

Saw Him Several Times

The witness said he saw Dickenson several times prior to Oct. 8, 1951, when they confided to each other that they were planning escapes.

Then, on that day, Carrick said he was ordered to headquarters and was told by Wong, a Chinese military adviser, that he was going to escape and was asked "who were going with me."

Carrick said he told Wong he was not planning to escape whereupon the Chinese left the room.

Shortly afterwards, Carrick said, he heard a conversation in an adjoining room between Dickenson and Tong, another Chinese captor, in which Dickenson was asked for the names of the men in Carrick's group planning to escape.

Cooper, a former delegate to the United Nations, said in an interview he hopes no American troops will have to be used in the fight against Communist-led forces in Indochina. In any event,

Two Report No Soldiers Considered

Ferguson and Bridges Talk With Dulles; Situation Is in Hand, Is Report

Washington, April 20 (AP)—Two senators said today after a meeting with Secretary of State Dulles that no decision to dispatch American fighting forces in Indochina is being considered.

Both senators are Republicans, Ferguson of Michigan and Bridges of New Hampshire.

Ferguson, who left the meeting early to keep another appointment, added:

"I don't think it (the decision) is in the works at all.

"At present I am against sending American troops to Indochina. I know of no facts to warrant it."

The two senators talked to reporters at the State Department after Dulles had briefed a 15-man congressional delegation on developments in Indochina and the forthcoming Geneva Peace Conference which the Reds will attend.

'Well in Hand'

Dulles has "the situation well in hand," Ferguson said. The secretary will leave for the Geneva Conference "with the blessing of congressional leaders," he added.

Bridges said in his view "the situation looks gloomy but not hopeless." He said any move to send American forces to Indochina "was not in the wind."

But, he added that no one could foretell what the future would hold.

Bridges said in a speech last night that "we have made our decision" to hold Indochina.

Sen. Cooper (R.-Ky.) said today he is prepared to go all the way with the Eisenhower administration to keep Indochina out of Communist hands.

Says It's Unlikely

Dulles said yesterday after a conference with President Eisenhower at Augusta, Ga., that it is "unlikely" any American troops will be sent to the southeast Asia battleground. But he declined to answer an "if" question: Would he favor sending U. S. troops as a last resort if the French should pull out of Indochina?

Dickenson repeated "the names of my men," Carrick said.

Shortly afterwards, Carrick said, Tong asked Dickenson "if he would put it on paper. Then I heard the rattle of paper."

Sent to Another Prison

Shortly afterward, Carrick said he was sent to another prison camp for "men the Chinese called reactionaries."

Planes Replenish Trapped Troops

American Civilian Pilots Brave Guns of Vietminh to Reach Dien Bien Phu

Hanoi, Indochina, April 20 (AP)—The thousands of valiant defenders of Dien Bien Phu—trapped by encircling hosts of Communist-led Vietminh troops — received fresh strength from the skies today.

American-supplied Dakota and flying boxcars, piloted by American civilian flyers, swooped low through curtains of fire from rebel artillery and antiaircraft batteries to parachute tons more ammunition, food, and war material of all types into the long-besieged French Union bastion.

Despite cloudy, rain-laden skies which forced war planes to curtail radically their assaults on rebel positions, fighters firing rockets and heavy machine guns tried to knock out the Vietminh's antiaircraft guns.

They gave cover to the low-flying transports dropping supplies for the garrison battered by two all-out rebel assaults since March 13 and constant local Vietminh atttacks in the intervening weeks.

Constantly pressing in on the Y-shaped French chain of defense, the legions of Communist Ho Chi Minh by today ringed the shrunken fortifications with trenches and dugouts 1,000 yards or less from the fortress' main barriers.

The rebels over the weekend captured two more French outposts on the northern arm of the "Y" to further ring in the garrison.

The French Union defenders fought back with renewed fury in their never-ending effort to deny the Vietminh a major victory before the big powers meet next Monday to talk about peace in Asia.

There was little fresh word from the fortress 175 miles west of Hanoi today. The French high command said only that the situation last night was "relatively calm."

Road Work Progresses On 2 Sides

State Authority Opens Figures—Schedule Is 300 Days After Start of Construction

This is a big day in the history of Ulster and Dutchess counties, because State Bridge Authority officials will open first important bids for the building of a bridge over the Hudson river that will join the two.

Sub-structure bids were scheduled to be opened at 2 p. m., at Ferry street office, this city, and while the bids are being considered work will be progressing on the approaches to the bridge in this county and on the other side of the river.

James F. Loughran, of this city, chairman of the New York State Bridge Authority said today that Philip Totonelly, Inc., of Newburgh, contractor for the clearing and grading of the western approach, resumed work yesterday, and it expected that this work will be finished in about two months.

Got Later Start

The Grandview Construction Co., of Mt. Vernon, contractor for the clearing and grading of the eastern approach, got a later start, and work which has started there is not expected to be completed until later in the year.

Meanwhile, Governor Thomas E. Dewey, last week signed a bill permitting earlier construction of a bridge in the Newburgh-Beacon area earlier than originally planned and the recent developments hint at the possibility of both projects being sponsored by a single bond issue.

The Poughkeepsie New Yorker yesterday quoted Loughran as "willing to finance two spans with a single package bond issue," but Loughran indicated today he intended the statement only as his "impression" that both projects could be jointly financed if such a move were found mutually beneficial to both.

"I do not hesitate to recommend this," he said, "if by so doing," the projects "could be processed any more rapidly." He said he "wouldn't want one or the other held up," by such a move.

No Personal Objection

The Poughkeepsie newspaper reported Loughran as saying in effect that while he could not speak for the four other members of the authority, he said he had no personal objection to financing both bridges and paying off the existing $5,100,000 debt of the authority in a single bond issue.

The authority is empowered to borrow up to $50,000,000. It would require a bond issue of about $41,000,000 to finance both bridges and pay off the debt. The estimated cost of the Kingston span is about $18,000,000 and that at Newburgh, $17,800,000.

Money from toll surpluses is being used to finance the approaches of the Kingston-Rhinebeck span. It was recently reported that the authority had about $4,000,000 surplus which may be used as the authority may determine.

Could Start Soon

Work on the substructure of the span could start in about a month or six weeks after the bidding today, if usual state procedure is followed. On state road projects, contractors known to the state, have started within a month.

The project is scheduled to be completed in 300 days after start of work.

The present contract calls for 12,000 cubic yards of dry, and the same amount of wet excavation, 14,000 cubic yards of concrete for land piers and abutments, 47,000 cubic yards for river piers, 1,400 cubic yards of granite masonry, 2,700,000 pounds of bar reinforcements, 500,000 pounds of structural steel, 100,000 linear feet of steel bearing piles and 9,000 linear feet of cast-in-place concrete piles.

Plans for the bridge were by D. B. Steinman, of New York.

Byrd Cites Excess Deal at Glen Oaks

Wilson Sees U. S. Safe From Attack

Secretary Thinks Russians More Afraid; Nation Held Secure

Washington, April 20 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson says he believes the United States is "relatively secure" from surprise atomic attack and even more secure from sustained aerial assault.

Wilson said Russia would lose many bombers and trained crews in the initial stages of any air war over America "and I do not believe they could keep it up."

Testifying recently before a House Appropriations subcommittee considering the defense budget, Wilson challenged an opinion of Rep. Mahon (D.-Tex.) that the United States is "highly vulnerable to atomic attacks at this time."

Believes U. S. Vulnerable

The secretary said he believes the nation is vulnerable but "relatively secure," adding that he believes the Russians "have been much more afraid of us than we are of them."

Other testimony, portions of which were made public last night, disclosed that:

1. The Defense Department plans to bring more troops back from the Far East. Earlier two army divisions were ordered home from Korea for deactivation.

2. Wilson and Asst. Secretary John Hannah told the subcommittee they have reports of 118 "security risks" who were fired or resigned last year after investigations were begun. They said reports have not yet been received

Loan of 24 Million Favored on Job Which Cost Only 20

Washington, April 20 (AP)—Sen. Byrd (D.-Va.) said today government housing officials "guaranteed 24 million dollars in loans" on Glen Oaks Village in Queens county, New York, although the apartment project cost only 20 million.

Byrd said he had been unable to get an explanation of why this was done, and called it a clear evasion of a law that limited such loans to a maximum of five million dollars.

Furthermore, tax officials have hundreds of similar examples of "unconscionable distribution of profits" and "windfalls" under federal housing programs, Byrd declared.

Begins Inquiry

Byrd's comments came as his committee on reduction of nonessential federal expenditures began an inquiry into reports of multi-million dollar scandals in the federal housing program.

He said he wrote Housing Administrator Albert M. Cole on March 24 asking who was responsible for these loan guarantees but has not yet had a "direct answer."

T. Coleman Andrews, collector of internal revenue, was in the witness chair before the Byrd group. Byrd credited Andrews with tipping off that fact that something was wrong in the federal housing programs more than 10 months ago, or June 1 of last year. He said Andrews would testify about some of the cases.

Hospital Wing Contract Given

Bid of $799,800 Made; Award Subject to Availability of Funds, Stipulation

Anderson Fischer Associates, of Elmont, L. I., the same contractor which built dormitories for the New Paltz State Teachers College, last night was awarded the contract for construction of a wing on Kingston Hospital, at a meeting of the hospital's board of trustees.

The low bid was $799,800 and the contract award was "subject to the availability of funds."

The bid was on a proposal designated as "proposition number two," and the "final amount of the contract will be determined after further negotiations with the contractor."

Seven-Story Addition

Provisions of the proposition call for erection of the seven-story addition on the Foxhall avenue side of the building, with the first four floors finished "under this contract," and the top three floors to be completed in the future."

A campaign to raise $450,000 was announced at the same time, "in order to successfully carry out this project." The fund drive is expected to start "in the near future."

The board announced that application has been made to the New York State Joint Hospital Planning and Survey Commission for additional aid under the Hill-Burton Act.

Other details and descriptions of the project are to be announced, the board said.

The board rejected a former bid, deciding it was excessive.

Brophy and Owens Get Short Terms In Dutchess Jail

Both Former Patrolmen Admit Perjury Guilt in Poughkeepsie Gambling

Poughkeepsie, April 20 (AP) — Two former policemen today were sentenced to short terms in Dutchess county jail on their pleas of guilty to charges growning out of a city gambling probe.

George T. Brophy, 53, former detective captain, was sentenced by County Judge John R. Schwartz to four months in jail on his plea of guilty to a single reduced charge of second-degree perjury.

Pleads to Reduced Charges

Brophy had been indicted on two counts of first-degree perjury and two of second degree perjury. He entered his plea to the reduced charge April 2, and Judge Schwartz ruled that his sentence run from the time he entered jail on April 12.

William J. Owens, 51, a former patrolman, who pleaded guilty March 1 to 11 counts of second-degree perjury, was sentenced to three months in jail. His sentence, too, is to run from the time he entered jail on March 8.

Both men had been members of the police department since 1928. Both resigned from the force after pleading guilty.

Condition Same

John Daniel Kelly, 21, of 41 Tulip street, Poughkeepsie, who was injured early Sunday morning in an accident on Route 9W a mile north of the Highland traffic circle, still had not recovered consciousness by mid-morning today, authorities as Vassar Brothers Hospital in Poughkeepsie reported. His condition was reported as unchanged from Monday, when he was carried on the hospital's danger list.

Work Is Stopped On State Thruway

Amsterdam, April 20 (AP) — A strike today stopped work on a 16-mile stretch of the state Thruway from Fultonville to Fort Plain in Montgomery county.

Amsterdam Local 61 of the AFL Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers Union called the strike in an effort to obtain a contract on its terms from the B. Perini Construction Co. of Boston.

The union placed a picket in front of the Perini Company office in Fultonville and one in front of the Canajoharie office of the Monroe Langstroth Co., a subcontractor.

An estimated 250 men, members of the AFL Truck Drivers' and Operating Engineers' unions honored the nominal picket lines.

Local 61 was reported to be seeking a contract that would provide for a rate of $3.14 an hour and double pay for overtime.

Roosevelt Plans To Ask Divorce

Notice Filed in California That He Will Seek Change April 30

Pasadena, Calif., April 20 (AP)—James Roosevelt, whose marital affairs have become involved in his candidacy for Congress, has offered his wife a property settlement and plans to sue for divorce.

The eldest son of the late President filed notice in Superior Court here yesterday that he will petition on April 30 for leave to amend his separate maintenance suit to ask for a divorce instead.

The document quoted a letter between attorneys for the Roosevelts indicating that Mrs. Romelle Roosevelt also will ask for a divorce on grounds of cruelty, the same as in her husband's projected suit.

On Grounds of Cruelty

The letter from Roosevelt's attorney to Mrs. Roosevelt's counsel said it was understood that Mrs. Roosevelt would seek the divorce on grounds of unspecified cruelty, indicating that the estranged wife would drop allegations of adultery which Roosevelt has denied.

There was no comment from Mrs. Roosevelt. Presumably the papers, filed just before court closing yesterday, have not yet been served on her.

Roosevelt's settlement offer in essence is to make half of his

Wepman Pleads To Poison Murder

Admits to Second Degree Charge in Cocktail Murder of Two

New York, April 20 (AP)—Dennis Wepman today pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree in the poison champagne cocktail murders of Dr. and Mrs. William Fraden.

Wepman, 20, had been indicted on a first-degree murder charge with Harlow Fraden, 22, son of Dr. and Mrs. Fraden. He faces a prison term of 20 years to life.

The younger Fraden was found insane and committed to the Matteawan State Hospital for the Criminal Insane, on Feb. 11.

Wepman was pronounced sane after psychiatric tests.

Dr. and Mrs. Fraden were found dead in their Bronx apartment last August. The deaths were listed tentatively as suicide

Windshield Pocks Appear in Indiana

Indianapolis, April 20 (AP)—Pocked windshields like those reported last week on the west coast have appeared in Terre Haute, South Bend, Rochester and Auburn, Indiana.

Russell (Dinty) Moore, a Rochester city councilman, said he found small pits with sharp edges on the windshield of his car, parked outside the church.

Arthur Johnson, a Terre Haute printer, said he found small pits the size of a pinhead, along with a film of fine dust, on the windshield of his parked car.

Richard S. Dana, South Bend, said he discovered similar pitting when he washed his car a week ago but didn't report it until he read about the epidemic of glass-pox on the west coast.

Travel Increase Seen

New York, April 20 (AP)—The president of the American Express Co. predicted today there would be a six per cent increase in American travel abroad this year, compared with last year. President Ralph T. Reed, returning on the liner Queen Elizabeth from a month's tour of western Europe, estimated that Americans would spend more than $1,368,000,000 abroad in 1954. He also gave these predictions for the number of American visitors in certain cities: London, 250,000; Paris 350,000 and Rome 210,000.

Australians Rescue Mrs. Petrov From Two Armed Russian Escorts

Mrs. Petrov With Red Couriers

Darwin, Australia, April 20 (AP)—Blonde Mrs. Vladimir Petrov joined her ex-diplomat husband as a refugee from Soviet communism today after Australian police jerked loaded pistols away from two Russian escorts ushering her in tears back to Moscow.

The 35-year-old woman's last-minute switch to the free world followed a fantastic tug of war in which Australian police wrestled wildly to disarm two of her guards as her Europe-bound plane stopped here on the first leg of its flight from Sydney. The gun-toting Russians had tried to muscle local officials out of talking to Mrs. Petrov.

Eight hours earlier some 1,500 anti-Communists at Sydney fought with police in a vain effort to prevent her from being dragged aboard the Boac Constellation by the Soviet Embassy second secretary and the two armed Russian diplomatic couriers convoying her home.

White Russians in the crowd said they heard her screaming: "I do not want to go. Save me."

Mrs. Petrov was said by Australian authorities to have been heading back to Russia in the belief her husband had been kidnaped and killed. She had told reporters at an embassy news conference last week she thought he had been kidnaped.

She made her final decision to stay after a pre-arranged telephone call from Darwin for her first talk with her 45-year-old husband since he fled early this

Chinese, Soviet Breach Might Help U. S. in Korea Situation

During a panel discussion of four Associated Press staff writers, Monday afternoon, on foreign affairs, it was brought out that there is a schism between the Chinese and Russians relative to occupation in Korea and it was stressed that this condition might be exploited advantageously by the United States.

It was also revealed that U. S. possession of the H-bomb has confronted Russia with something of a dilemma, and that Vice President Nixon's remarks on sending American troops to Indochina are in line with the thinking of many Washington officials.

The panel took place at the annual meeting of the Associated Press in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York, following an address by Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., U. S. ambassador to the United Nations.

The four staff men, who answered questions from publishers about foreign affairs, were:

Frank Noel, Pulitzer prize winning photographer captured by the Communists in Korea.

Relmanmorin, who won a Pulitzer prize for reporting of the Korean war.

John Hightower, a Pulitzer prize winner for international reporting.

Thomas Whitney, who spent seven years in Moscow as an AP correspondent.

Moderator of the discussion was Benjamin M. McKelway of the Washington Star, an AP director.

Noel told the AP members that there is a schism between the Chinese Reds and the Russians and he expressed hope that the United States would exploit it. Noel, who was released last year after the

Believes U. S. Vulnerable

The secretary said he believes the nation is vulnerable but "relatively secure," adding that he believes the Russians "have been much more afraid of us than we are of them."

Other testimony, portions of which were made public last night, disclosed that:

1. The Defense Department plans to bring more troops back from the Far East. Earlier two army divisions were ordered home from Korea for deactivation.

2. Wilson and Asst. Secretary John Hannah told the subcommittee they have reports of 118 "security risks" who were fired or resigned last year after investigations were begun. They said reports have not yet been received

Loan of 24 Million Favored on Job Which Cost Only 20

Washington, April 20 (AP)—Sen. Byrd (D.-Va.) said today government housing officials "guaranteed 24 million dollars in loans" on Glen Oaks Village in Queens county, New York, although the apartment project cost only 20 million.

Byrd said he had been unable to get an explanation of why this was done, and called it a clear evasion of a law that limited such loans to a maximum of five million dollars.

Furthermore, tax officials have hundreds of similar examples of "unconscionable distribution of profits" and "windfalls" under federal housing programs, Byrd declared.

Begins Inquiry

Byrd's comments came as his committee on reduction of non-essential federal expenditures began an inquiry into reports of multi-million dollar scandals in the federal housing program.

He said he wrote Housing Administrator Albert M. Cole on March 24 asking who was responsible for these loan guarantees but has not yet had a "direct answer."

T. Coleman Andrews, collector of internal revenue, was in the witness chair before the Byrd group. Byrd credited Andrews with tipping off that fact that something was wrong in the federal housing programs more than 10 months ago, or June 1 of last year. He said Andrews would testify about some of the cases.

Hospital Wing Contract Given

Bid of $799,800 Made; Award Subject to Availability of Funds, Stipulation

Anderson Fischer Associates, of Elmont, L. I., the same contractor which built dormitories for the New Paltz State Teachers College, last night was awarded the contract for construction of a wing on Kingston Hospital, at a meeting of the hospital's board of trustees.

The low bid was $799,800 and the contract award was "subject to the availability of funds."

The bid was on a proposal designated as "proposition number two," and the "final amount of the contract will be determined after further negotiations with the contractor."

Seven-Story Addition

Provisions of the proposition call for erection of the seven-story addition on the Foxhall avenue side of the building, with the first four floors finished "under this contract," and the top three floors to be completed in the future."

A campaign to raise $450,000 was announced at the same time, "in order to successfully carry out this project." The fund drive is expected to start "in the near future."

The board announced that application has been made to the New York State Joint Hospital Planning and Survey Commission for additional aid under the Hill-Burton Act.

Other details and descriptions of the project are to be announced, the board said.

The board rejected a former bid, deciding it was excessive.

Roosevelt Plans To Ask Divorce

Notice Filed in California That He Will Seek Change April 30

Pasadena, Calif., April 20 (AP)—James Roosevelt, whose marital affairs have become involved in his candidacy for Congress, has offered his wife a property settlement and plans to sue for divorce.

The eldest son of the late President filed notice in Superior Court here yesterday that he will petition on April 30 for leave to amend his separate maintenance suit to ask for a divorce instead.

The document quoted a letter between attorneys for the Roosevelts indicating that Mrs. Romelle Roosevelt also will ask for a divorce on grounds of cruelty, the same as in her husband's projected suit.

On Grounds of Cruelty

The letter from Roosevelt's attorney to Mrs. Roosevelt's counsel said it was understood that Mrs. Roosevelt would seek the divorce on grounds of unspecified cruelty, indicating that the estranged wife would drop allegations of adultery which Roosevelt has denied.

There was no comment from Mrs. Roosevelt. Presumably the papers, filed just before court closing yesterday, have not yet been served on her.

Roosevelt's settlement offer in essence is to make half of his

Both Former Patrolmen Admit Perjury Guilt in Poughkeepsie Gambling

Poughkeepsie, April 20 (AP)—Two former policemen today were sentenced to short terms in Dutchess county jail on their pleas of guilty to charges growning out of a city gambling probe.

George T. Brophy, 53, former detective captain, was sentenced by County Judge John R. Schwartz to four months in jail on his plea of guilty to a single reduced charge of second-degree perjury.

Pleads to Reduced Charges

Brophy had been indicted on two counts of first-degree perjury and two of second degree perjury. He entered his plea to the reduced charge April 2, and Judge Schwartz ruled that his sentence run from the time he entered jail on April 12.

William J. Owens, 51, a former patrolman, who pleaded guilty March 1 to 11 counts of second-degree perjury, was sentenced to three months in jail. His sentence, too, is to run from the time he entered jail on March 8.

Both men had been members of the police department since 1928. Both resigned from the force after pleading guilty.

Amsterdam, April 20 (AP) — A strike today stopped work on a 16-mile stretch of the state Thruway from Fultonville to Fort Plain in Montgomery county.

Amsterdam Local 61 of the AFL Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers Union called the strike in an effort to obtain a contract on its terms from the B. Perini Construction Co. of Boston.

The union placed a picket in front of the Perini Company office in Fultonville and one in front of the Canajoharie office of the Monroe Langstroth Co., a subcontractor.

An estimated 250 men, members of the AFL Truck Drivers' and Operating Engineers' unions honored the nominal picket lines.

Mrs. Petrov With Red Couriers

Darwin, Australia, April 20 (AP)—Blonde Mrs. Vladimir Petrov joined her ex-diplomat husband as a refugee from Soviet communism today after Australian police jerked loaded pistols away from two Russian escorts ushering her in tears back to Moscow.

The 35-year-old woman's last-minute switch to the free world followed a fantastic tug of war in which Australian police wrestled wildly to disarm two of her guards as her Europe-bound plane stopped here on the first leg of its flight from Sydney. The gun-toting Russians had tried to muscle local officials out of talking to Mrs. Petrov.

Eight hours earlier some 1,500 anti-Communists at Sydney fought with police in a vain effort to prevent her from being dragged aboard the Boac Constellation by the Soviet Embassy second secretary and the two armed Russian diplomatic couriers convoying her home.

White Russians in the crowd said they heard her screaming: "I do not want to go. Save me."

Mrs. Petrov was said by Australian authorities to have been heading back to Russia in the belief her husband had been kidnaped and killed. She had told reporters at an embassy news conference last week she thought he had been kidnaped.

She made her final decision to stay after a pre-arranged telephone call from Darwin for her first talk with her 45-year-old husband since he fled early this

Chinese, Soviet Breach Might Help U. S. in Korea Situation

During a panel discussion of four Associated Press staff writers, Monday afternoon, on foreign affairs, it was brought out that there is a schism between the Chinese and Russians relative to occupation in Korea and it was stressed that this condition might be exploited advantageously by the United States.

It was also revealed that U. S. possession of the H-bomb has confronted Russia with something of a dilemma, and that Vice President Nixon's remarks on sending American troops to Indochina are in line with the thinking of many Washington officials.

The panel took place at the annual meeting of the Associated Press in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York, following an address by Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., U. S. ambassador to the United Nations.

The four staff men, who answered questions from publishers about foreign affairs, were:

Frank Noel, Pulitzer prize winning photographer captured by the Communists in Korea.

Relmanmorin, who won a Pulitzer prize for reporting of the Korean war.

John Hightower, a Pulitzer prize winner for international reporting.

Thomas Whitney, who spent seven years in Moscow as an AP correspondent.

Moderator of the discussion was Benjamin M. McKelway of the Washington Star, an AP director.

Noel told the AP members that there is a schism between the Chinese Reds and the Russians and he expressed hope that the United States would exploit it. Noel, who was released last year after the

2 Youths Fishing Find Drowned Boy At East Kingston

The body of a young boy was taken from the Hudson river at East Kingston early this afternoon.

Undersheriff Clayton Vredenburg said that the boy, who has not been identified, apparently was between the age of 10 and 14 years.

The boy had been in the water quite a while, Vredenburg said.

The body was discovered at 11:30 a. m. by Patrick Mitchell and James Denter of East Kingston, who were fishing from the old Brigham dock.

The two teen-agers said they tied the body to the dock then notified Thomas Mooney at the nearby East Kingston Brick Co., who summoned the sheriff's department.

Vredenburg with deputies, William Churchill and Joseph Gentile, assisted by Michael Tiano of East Kingston, had difficulty because of the high tide and rough water in pulling the body from the river. They succeeded in removing it by 1 p. m.

The body was taken to the Francis J. McCardle Funeral Home, where Coroner McCardle is examining it to find out how long the boy had been dead.

The boy was wearing brown shoes, striped socks, a blue shirt and trousers, the color of which could not be determined, the sheriff's department said.

A check with the Kingston Police Department failed to reveal any missing boys from this area. Other police agencies are being checked in an effort to learn the identity of the youngster.

Decision Reserved

New York, April 20 (AP)—John David Provoo, 36, now serving a life term for treason while a prisoner of the Japanese, claims he was tried in the wrong court and has asked that his sentence be set aside. Federal Judge Gregory F. Noonan reserved decision yesterday on Provoo's request, argued by his lawyer, George A. Spiegelberg. Spiegelberg said Provoo should have been tried at Ft. Meade, Md., instead of being transferred by the army to Ft. Jay, New York city. Before his arrest on treason charges, Spiegelberg said, Provoo was in the stockade at Ft. Meade awaiting court martial for alleged homosexual activities. Noonan remarked, "the army is apparently trying to cover up its own mistakes. It should never have given him an honorable discharge or allowed him to re-enlist."

Washington, April 20 (AP)—Atty. Gen. Two Report . . .

ery asked Carrick if he had told the prosecution before the trial that Dickenson also had admitted that he was planning an escape. Carrick said yes. "That was before the rattling of the paper," he said.

Emery complained that the charges against Dickenson were not sufficiently specific to enable Dickenson to draw up a defense. He said that he had no idea of what Carrick would allege until the start of the court martial.

Col. Richard F. Scarborough, the law officer (judge), granted a motion by Emery that the prosecution be required to name names, dates and places in its charges against Dickenson.

Recess Asked

Col. C. Robert Bard, the prosecutor, then asked a recess until 1 p. m. to draw up a bill of particulars. The request was granted and court was recessed until that time.

It was considered likely that the defense then would ask for a continuance in order to investigate the specific charges.

Dickenson, a 23-year-old soldier from Cracker's Neck, Va., is charged with collaborating with the enemy while a POW and with supplying his captors information that led to mistreatment of fellow prisoners. He pleaded innocent yesterday.

Dickenson first refused repatriation when the Korean armistice was signed, but later changed his mind and returned to this country.

The Israel government also announced that 18 frontier clashes between infiltrators and Israeli security forces occurred in the week ended April 15. Chinese, Soviet Korean truce, said the schism began developing about two years ago.

The Chinese Communists, he said, "want the Russians to get out."

"But, instead of getting out," he added, "they are bringing their wives and children in. The Chinese don't like it."

Whitney told the gathering that he believes American possession of the H-bomb has confronted Russia with something of a dilemma. He explained it this way: Communist dogma always has held that there will be world revolution entailing conflict; and now the Kremlin faces the proposition that conflict would mean destruction of the Soviet Union.

In Line With Thinking

Hightower, answering a question, said he did not know whether Vice President Nixon was speaking for the administration or for himself when he said U. S. troops might have to be sent to fight in Indochina. Either way, Hightower said, Nixon's remarks were in line with the thinking of many Washington officials.

Hightower said the question was where to draw the line against Communist aggression. He added that the line would be shorter inside Indochina than it would be if the Reds engulfed Indochina and possibly neighboring nations.

Morin told the gathering that he believes the South Korean army will be developed within a reasonable time to a point where U. S. troops can be withdrawn to a reserve area—possibly outside Korea.

No Recognition Seen

Asked whether there is any possibility of Japan recognizing Communist China, Morin said Japanese officials told him there was no thought of recognition or even of signing a trade agreement.

McKelway jibed at so-called "off the record" talks and "news leaks."

His comment, made in opening the discussion session, was in obvious reference to Nixon's "off the record" talk before the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington last week.

McKelway said:

"We are fully aware that this is a gathering composed almost exclusively of newspaper people and it is an extraordinary procedure to fail to announce that what is said here is entirely off the record, not to be attributed to anybody in particular although it may be attributed to anybody in general....

"Frankly, the reason we abandoned the off the record restriction was that a sudden shortage of trial balloons has developed—all of the trial balloons having been used up in Washington last week...."

Members of the Associated Press reelected four directors and elected two new ones at the annual meeting.

The board meets today.

Directors reelected were: John S. Knight, Chicago Daily News; James M. Cox Jr., Dayton (Ohio) Daily News; Mark Ethridge, Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal; and Dolph Simons, Lawrence (Kan.) Journal-World.

The new directors are Harold A. Fitzgerald, Pontiac (Mich.) Press, and Bernard H. Ridder Jr., Duluth (Minn.) News-Tribune.

Fitzgerald and Ridder replace Roy A. Roberts of the Kansas City Star and Palmer Hoyt of the Denver Post, who were not eligible for reelection because they had served three consecutive terms.

Results of the election were announced early today. The candidates chosen were first nominated by the AP's Nominating Committee last November.

he added, he believes that any decision on troop use need not be made immediately.

Instead, he said, the United States should press the French to permit American training of native troops to fight against the Reds — a proposal which the French previously have received without enthusiasm.

'No Change'

Chairman Saltonstall (R-Mass) of the Senate Armed Services Committee told the Senate yesterday he had been told there was "no change" in the policy against employing U. S. combat units in Indochina. He said he had been so told by Secretary of Defense Wilson and Thruston B. Morton, assistant secretary of state.

The troop-use question was brought to the fore by the statement of Vice President Nixon last Friday that American troops might have to be used as a last resort if the French should withdraw—a possibility he termed unlikely.

Sen. Edward C. Johnson (D-Colo) coupled this with statements he said Nixon had made at a private social affair and said the vice president was "whooping it up for war."

Opposing what he characterized as "Mr. Nixon's War"—a satirical reference to Republican charges that Korea was "Truman's War"—Johnson told his colleagues:

"I am against sending American GI's into the mud and muck of Indochina on a bloodletting spree to perpetuate colonialism and the white man's exploitation in Asia. The Monroe Doctrine and Asia for Asians ought to be the foundation of our foreign policy."

Reports on Talks

New York, April 20 (AP)—An NBC reporter in Tokyo said today that he had been informed "highly secret meetings" are on between French officials and Ho Chi Minh in Saigon in an effort to work out peace in Indochina.

2 Youths Fishing Find Drowned Boy At East Kingston

The body of a young boy was taken from the Hudson river at East Kingston early this afternoon.

Undersheriff Clayton Vredenburg said that the boy, who has not been identified, apparently was between the age of 10 and 14 years.

The boy had been in the water quite a while, Vredenburg said.

The body was discovered at 11:30 a. m. by Patrick Mitchell and James Denter of East Kingston, who were fishing from the old Brigham dock.

The two teen-agers said they tied the body to the dock then notified Thomas Mooney at the nearby East Kingston Brick Co., who summoned the sheriff's department.

Vredenburg with deputies, William Churchill and Joseph Gentile, assisted by Michael Tiano of East Kingston, had difficulty because of the high tide and rough water in pulling the body from the river. They succeeded in removing it by 1 p. m.

The body was taken to the Francis J. McCardle Funeral Home, where Coroner McCardle is examining it to find out how long the boy had been dead.

The boy was wearing brown shoes, striped socks, a blue shirt and trousers, the color of which could not be determined, the sheriff's department said.

A check with the Kingston Police Department failed to reveal any missing boys from this area. Other police agencies are being checked in an effort to learn the identity of the youngster.

Decision Reserved

New York, April 20 (AP)—John David Provoo, 36, now serving a life term for treason while a prisoner of the Japanese, claims he was tried in the wrong court and has asked that his sentence be set aside. Federal Judge Gregory F. Noonan reserved decision yesterday on Provoo's request, argued by his lawyer, George A. Spiegelberg. Spiegelberg said Provoo should have been tried at Ft. Meade, Md., instead of being transferred by the army to Ft. Jay, New York city. Before his arrest on treason charges, Spiegelberg said, Provoo was in the stockade at Ft. Meade awaiting court martial for alleged homosexual activities. Noonan remarked, "the army is apparently trying to cover up its own mistakes. It should never have given him an honorable discharge or allowed him to re-enlist."

Two Held After Accident

No one was reported injured but two men were arrested after a taxicab and a trailer truck collided at the western end of the Thruway construction area on Route 28 about 9:30 p. m. Monday. Troopers of the Kingston station said a Roosa Taxi Service cab traveling toward Kingston struck and knocked the rear wheels off the truck trailer, which was headed toward Phoenicia and making the turn from the temporary detour route into Route 28. The cab driver, Joseph Oppenheimer, 54, of 302 Wall street, was arrested on a charge of driving while intoxicated; and his passenger, Joseph Smith, 50, of 55 Pierpont street, was arrested on a charge of public intoxication. Both were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Harold E. Macholdt of the town of Ulster, both pleaded innocent and were scheduled for hearings on April 21. Oppenheimer posted bail of $100, and Smith, $50. The truck, loaded with fertilizer, was owned by Irving Campbell of Andes and driven by Alford Barrett, 38, of Arena. Points Need of Speed

Washington, April 20 (AP)—Atty. Gen. Brownell argued to a Senate judiciary subcommittee today that the speed and secrecy needed to trap spies might be impossible if a court order is required before wires can be tapped for legal evidence. The subcommittee is considering a House-approved bill which would permit evidence secured by wiretapping to be introduced in federal courts in cases involving treason, espionage and related offenses provided a court order was secured in advance approving the wire-tapping.

Blame Vandals

Toledo, Ohio, April 20 (AP)—Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co. says it can find no explanation other than vandalism or some other physical cause for pockmarked automobile windshields. E. M. Everhard, vice president in charge of sales for L-O-F, manufacturer of windshield glass, said the safety glass used in windshields is impervious to all commercial acids, with one exception. Two Report . . .

ery asked Carrick if he had told the prosecution before the trial that Dickenson also had admitted that he was planning an escape. Carrick said yes. "That was before the rattling of the paper," he said.

Emery complained that the charges against Dickenson were not sufficiently specific to enable Dickenson to draw up a defense. He said that he had no idea of what Carrick would allege until the start of the court martial.

Col. Richard F. Scarborough, the law officer (judge), granted a motion by Emery that the prosecution be required to name names, dates and places in its charges against Dickenson.

Recess Asked

Col. C. Robert Bard, the prosecutor, then asked a recess until 1 p. m. to draw up a bill of particulars. The request was granted and court was recessed until that time.

It was considered likely that the defense then would ask for a continuance in order to investigate the specific charges.

Dickenson, a 23-year-old soldier from Cracker's Neck, Va., is charged with collaborating with the enemy while a POW and with supplying his captors information that led to mistreatment of fellow prisoners. He pleaded innocent yesterday.

Dickenson first refused repatriation when the Korean armistice was signed, but later changed his mind and returned to this country.

Fire on Israeli Car

Jerusalem, Irraeli Sector, April 20 (AP)—Two salvos from automatic weapons were fired at an Israeli police car traveling along the Lebanese border road, an Israeli military spokesman claimed today. He said the car was hit four times but there were no casualties. Israel has requested an emergency meeting of the Mixed Armistice Commission, he added. The Israel government also announced that 18 frontier clashes between infiltrators and Israeli security forces occurred in the week ended April 15. It said 12 were along the Egyptian border, five along the Jordanian, and one near the Syrian frontier.

Financial and Commercial

New York, April 20 (AP) — Selected industrials tilted the stock market upward today in moderate trading.

Utilities held fairly steady. Railroads and rubber companies showed signs of softness. But aircrafts, oils, mail order houses and some steels tended to rise. Motors, distillers, chemicals and airlines were mixed.

Climbers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Douglas, Boeing, Schenley, Philco, American Telephone, Anaconda, American Cyanamid, Westinghouse, American Tobacco, Baltimore & Ohio, Texas Co. and Pan American Airways.

Quotations by Morgan Davis & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, 63 Wall street, New York city; branch office 41 John street, R. B. Osterhoudt, manager.

Chinese, Soviet

Korean truce, said the schism began developing about two years ago.

The Chinese Communists, he said, "want the Russians to get out."

"But, instead of getting out," he added, "they are bringing their wives and children in. The Chinese don't like it."

Whitney told the gathering that he believes American possession of the H-bomb has confronted Russia with something of a dilemma. He explained it this way: Communist dogma always has held that there will be world revolution entailing conflict; and now the Kremlin faces the proposition that conflict would mean destruction of the Soviet Union.

In Line With Thinking

Hightower, answering a question, said he did not know whether Vice President Nixon was speaking for the administration or for himself when he said U. S. troops might have to be sent to fight in Indochina. Either way, Hightower said, Nixon's remarks were in line with the thinking of many Washington officials.

Hightower said the question was where to draw the line against Communist aggression. He added that the line would be shorter inside Indochina than it would be if the Reds engulfed Indochina and possibly neighboring nations.

Morin told the gathering that he believes the South Korean army will be developed within a reasonable time to a point where U. S. troops can be withdrawn to a reserve area—possibly outside Korea.

No Recognition Seen

Asked whether there is any possibility of Japan recognizing Communist China, Morin said Japanese officials told him there was no thought of recognition or even of signing a trade agreement.

McKelway jibed at so-called "off the record" talks and "news leaks."

His comment, made in opening the discussion session, was in obvious reference to Nixon's "off the record" talk before the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington last week.

McKelway said:

"We are fully aware that this is a gathering composed almost exclusively of newspaper people and it is an extraordinary procedure to fail to announce that what is said here is entirely off the record, not to be attributed to anybody in particular although it may be attributed to anybody in general....

"Frankly, the reason we abandoned the off the record restriction was that a sudden shortage of trial balloons has developed—all of the trial balloons having been used up in Washington last week...."

Members of the Associated Press reelected four directors and elected two new ones at the annual meeting.

The board meets today.

Directors reelected were: John S. Knight, Chicago Daily News; James M. Cox Jr., Dayton (Ohio) Daily News; Mark Ethridge, Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal; and Dolph Simons, Lawrence (Kan.) Journal-World.

The new directors are Harold A. Fitzgerald, Pontiac (Mich.) Press, and Bernard H. Ridder Jr., Duluth (Minn.) News-Tribune.

Fitzgerald and Ridder replace Roy A. Roberts of the Kansas City Star and Palmer Hoyt of the Denver Post, who were not eligible for reelection because they had served three consecutive terms.

Results of the election were announced early today. The candidates chosen were first nominated by the AP's Nominating Committee last November.

Former PW . . .

he added, he believes that any decision on troop use need not be made immediately.

Instead, he said, the United States should press the French to permit American training of native troops to fight against the Reds — a proposal which the French previously have received without enthusiasm.

'No Change'

Chairman Saltonstall (R-Mass) of the Senate Armed Services Committee told the Senate yesterday he had been told there was "no change" in the policy against employing U. S. combat units in Indochina. He said he had been so told by Secretary of Defense Wilson and Thruston B. Morton, assistant secretary of state.

The troop-use question was brought to the fore by the statement of Vice President Nixon last Friday that American troops might have to be used as a last resort if the French should withdraw—a possibility he termed unlikely.

Sen. Edward C. Johnson (D-Colo) coupled this with statements he said Nixon had made at a private social affair and said the vice president was "whooping it up for war."

Opposing what he characterized as "Mr. Nixon's War"—a satirical reference to Republican charges that Korea was "Truman's War" —Johnson told his colleagues:

"I am against sending American GI's into the mud and muck of Indochina on a bloodletting spree to perpetuate colonialism and the white man's exploitation in Asia. The Monroe Doctrine and Asia for Asians ought to be the foundation of our foreign policy."

Reports on Talks

New York, April 20 (AP)—An NBC reporter in Tokyo said today that he had been informed "highly secret meetings" are on between French officials and Ho Chi Minh in Saigon in an effort to work out peace in Indochina.

Four Are Chosen On Hughes Jury

Selection of a jury for the trial of a second degree sodomy charge against Tyler C. Hughes, Jr., of 235 Lucas avenue, Kingston, was begun in County Court Monday afternoon and was being continued today. At noon three women and a man had been accepted.

District Attorney Howard C. St. John and Assistant District Attorney John Schick appear for the prosecution and Francis Martocci appears for the defendant.

Hughes was arrested by Sergeant Arthur A. Reilly of the state police on January 9, 1954 on complaint of a 15-year-old Marbletown boy and held for grand jury action. The grand jury returned a bill of indictment charging that on January 3, 1954, the act charged in the indictment took place.

Will Complete Vote

Washington, April 20 (AP)—The Senate planned to complete voting today on a bill which sponsors say would enable the government to catch up on a huge backlog of building needs. A unanimous agreement controlled the debate, apparently assuring final action on the House-passed measure some time during the afternoon. Passage in some form seemed assured. Under its terms, the government would have contractors put up post offices and other buildings to its specifications, then would buy them through long-term payments like rent.

Gross Pleads Guilty To Evasion of Tax

New York, April 20 (AP)—Harry Gross, who once headed a Brooklyn bookmaking ring that reportedly did a business of 20 million dollars a year, has pleaded guilty to a charge of income tax evasion in 1950.

The 39-year-old gambler, arrested in September, 1950, made $68,087 that year and failed to file any return, the government charged.

Gross pleaded guilty yesterday before Federal Judge Matthew T. Abruzzo who said he would fix the sentence on May 7. Gross faces a maximum penalty of one year in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Since September, 1951, Gross has been serving an eight-year term for bookmaking and conspiracy. The Gross gambling case revealed he operated with the protection of scores of Brooklyn policemen. He said he paid off a number of high ranking police officers.

Dewey Signs 820 Bills, Vetoes 235

Albany, April 20 (AP) — Gov. Dewey has signed 820 of the 1,055 bills passed by the Legislature. He vetoed 235.

The governor completed action yesterday on the legislation, several hours before the midnight deadline on the 30-day period for signing bills.

Without his signature, a bill passed by the Legislature dies 30 days after adjournment. But Dewey followed his custom and signed his name or stamped "not approved" on each measure.

Slightly more than 22 per cent of the legislation was rejected, compared with about 28 per cent last year, when he signed 879 measures and vetoed 333.

There were no vetoes of major legislation, since the Republican-controlled Legislature filters out most Democratic bills and "rebel" measures have no chance.

Among Major Measures

Among the major measures getting Dewey's signature were bills to: Spell out ethical standards for state officials and employes, lawmakers and politicians; set up one-man control to clean up harness racing; prevent mistreatment of witnesses at state investigations, allot 350 million dollars for mental hygiene construction and 200 million for housing, grant pay raises to legislators and state officials, establish a system for compulsory car inspections, tighten movie censorship and authorize permanent personal registration of voters on a local option basis.

The only casualty in the Dewey program was mandatory automobile insurance—defeated in the Senate after Assembly passage.

Wind-Up Measures

Authorized adding an east-west parkway in the Bronx to the state highway map. The action cleared the way for construction of a 22-million-dollar parkway from the present Mosholu parkway to the Bronx Pelham parkways.

Grant life and industrial insurance companies power to increase expense outlays for their first year, mainly to train new agents and to stabilize personnel.

Simplify and make uniform the procedures for treating young offenders aged 16 to 21.

Alolw labor union credit unions to establish branch offices for the convenience of members in different communities.

Simplify procedures for dismissing petitions in tax review actions in New York city.

Liberalize financing provisions for public housing projects aided by federal funds.

Allow counties to establish special sewer districts.

That's because Knickerbocker—by certain special steps in brewing—removes all undesirable flavor elements. And the happy outcome is this:—Knickerbocker achieves a superior mellowness and smoothness . . . and you enjoy a more glorious flavor!

Yes, Knickerbocker—glass after glass—will please you as no beer you ever drank before. Yet it costs you no more.

So . . . Knock, Knock for Knickerbocker . . . the less filling beer that's in tune with today's taste, today's streamlined good looks! No other beer is so low in calories yet tastes so good!

NEED FOR REALISM AT GENEVA

Both in Paris and London, Secretary of State Dulles was roundly criticized for talking "united action" among the Allies on the Indo-China issue so close to the Geneva conference, where the topic will be discussed.

Actually, this is a pretty shallow judgment. The truth is that publicly expressed attitudes by French leaders in Paris left Dulles little choice.

For weeks the top French authorities have been acting as if they were preparing to swoon happily in Communist arms at Geneva at the first mention — in dulcet Red tones—of the word "truce."

They have allowed the impression to grow that they are ready to take almost any kind of settlement, no matter how thin the Communist masquerade of fair dealing.

It is the solemn and considered judgment of President Eisenhower, Dulles and other key American officials that almost any truce likely to be negotiated would be a bad one. By that they mean it would end up as a Communist victory in Indo-China.

It is also their sober conclusion that this result cannot be permitted to happen. There is no need here to state the full case again for Indo-China's importance to the future of all south Asia.

Often Communist blunders in diplomacy have helped out in these dilemmas. But we cannot count on Red stupidity producing truce terms so impossible the French cannot accept them. They just might play it smart.

Understanding this, the President and Dulles have set out to make it clear, not only to the Reds but to the French and others in the free orbit that we cannot countenance the loss—by any means—of Indo-China.

Everything Dulles has said and done in recent weeks has been designed to fortify himself for what may come to be the "Geneva ordeal."

He would not publicly state it so bluntly, but what he is really trying to do is prevent the French from making a truce at Geneva, for the simple reason he thinks free world security will otherwise suffer a grave setback.

Naturally, the French and British are angered at measures which seem to them to prejudice prospects for a truce. The French have no one but themselves to blame.

They forced Dulles to this extreme by behaving like willing listeners to any siren song from Moscow or Peiping.

Their criticisms really are quite empty in this case. For they talk as if a truce were the great goal in Indo-China.

But they have not said what they would do if, as likely, it turned out to be a smashing political defeat for the free countries.

Until they face up to this question, they are hardly in position to assail the United States. We are making a a display of our hard attitude to inject the note of realism at Geneva which ought to characterize the thinking of diplomacy among the French and British as well.

PATRIOTS' DAY

"Here once the embattled farmers stood
And fired the shot heard round the world."

So the philosopher and poet Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote about the battle of Concord on April 19, 1775. This was the first real battle of the Revolution, with losses on both sides.

Earlier in the day the British force of 1800 had encountered 60 or 70 Minute-Men drawn up on the common of neighboring Lexington. "Disperse, ye rebels!" cried Major Pitcairn, the British commander. When they failed to do so, his troops fired, killing seven colonials but suffering no loss themselves. The Minute-Men then dispersed. Ever since then Lexington has made the most of this priority in conflict and minimized the fact that the first real fighting was at Concord. It has been said that "The battle of Lexington was found at Concord by men from nearby Acton."

The Massachusetts legislature discreetly took no sides when they made April 19th a holiday under the title of Patriots' Day. It is a day on which all Americans may well pause a moment to think of that little group of heroes with honor and gratitude.

'These Days'

OPPENHEIMER AND LIBERALISM

For many months, I received, as did thousands of other Americans, circular brochures issued in Chicago by atomic scientists, many of them still employed by the Government of the United States, who differed with the official policy of this country on the use of information concerning atomic fission and the prospects of a thermonuclear bomb.

For the layman, not particularly versed or interested in science or in the disputations among scientists, these brochures presented the picture of employes of the Government opposing their employer. The argument ran that, as citizens, these government-employed scientists had as much right as any other citizen to express their opinions or to conduct a propaganda in favor of their point of view. Most of them supported the concept that secrecy in this field was wrong; the expansion of these bombs as instruments of war was immoral; that the Baruch Plan in the United Nations was unduly anti-Russian and so forth.

The immorality of the expansion of the bomb into more terrible instruments of warfare cannot be denied, but the immorality of leaving this country defenseless and a prey to Russia also cannot be denied. It seemed to me at the time that these scientists were suffering from the guilt of their own ingenuity. On the other hand, so much of their argument was in line with the Russian position in the United Nations that it was impossible not to wonder whether they were not guided more by their politics than by moral indignation.

J. Robert Oppenheimer's opposition to the development of the thermonuclear bomb must be related in time to his knowledge of the work on the thermonuclear bomb that was actually being done in Soviet Russia. He should have known how much knowledge of this subject Dr. Klaus Fuchs possessed; he probably knew how much the well-informed Britishers, Donald MacLean and Guy Burgess, possessed. We all know that Dr. Bruno Pontecorvo escaped to Russia in 1950 and that it was generally presumed that he took with him a sample of tritium, which is a chief ingredient of the hydrogen bomb. A scientist of Dr. Oppenheimer's stature could assess the danger of Pontecorvo's desertion.

Men who are empolyed on these secret defensive measures have a free choice to accept such employment and to give up their private opinions or to refuse such employment and to hold to their private opinions. Professor Francis W. Coker, of Yale University, stated the case of the modern liberal as follows:

"When the modern liberal has challenged the reasonableness or justice of particular orders made by official spokesmen for a ruling group, he has sometimes been rebuked as an advocate of disorder or disunity; or if he has appealed for the restoration of earlier freedoms, he has been rebuffed as one vainly trying to revive outmoded ideas. When, in a community with a democratic form of government, he challenges the justice or practicality of a particular decision of the official political majority, he is represented as rejecting the principle of majority rule. . . ."

This, of course, relates to the man who is not bound by commitments other than his own sense of responsibility. The atomic scientist, however, accepted employment in what is actually a military operation, the provision of adequate weapons for defense of the United States. Such persons were bound to secrecy because the Government so chose and the Government alone has the legal right to determine, either by Act of Congress or by Executive Regulation, what is to be secret and what is to be publicly disclosed. If each private citizen were to use his own judgment and choice in such matters, there would be no orderly government; there would be anarchy.

Actually, what the scientists of liberal persuasions sought to establish was that private opinion ought to prevail over government decisions when a conflict of view appeared. That undoubtedly was the view of Julius Rosenberg. His advocates adopted the view that as there was no secret about the atomic sciences, he disclosed nothing secret. It is a view widely held these days. The answer is that it is for the Government to decide what it wishes to disclose about its weapons.

This, it seems to me, is the issue in the Oppenheimer case. When Dr. Oppenheimer was approached by Haakon Chevalier to disclose secrets, his responsibility was to report instantly. That he did not do. The rest is commentary.

That Body of Yours

ALLERGY TO DRUGS IN CHILDREN

During World War 1 a whole unit of engineers was sent to our hospital, many of them suffering with scarlet fever and the others because they were contacts. One of the patients was well known to me as he was an intercollegiate quarter-mile runner. He complained bitterly about being sent to hospital because he was not sick, had no symptoms of scarlet fever except a small rash. I asked him if he had taken any medicine that day and he admitted taking a headache powder. The ward medical officer and I, because he was not sick, decided that he was likely allergic to the drug in the headache powder and within a few hours he was clear of the rash.

In Annals of Allergy, Minneapolis, Drs. J. Glaser and D. E. Johnstone report their investigation of drugs, used in the treatment of children, to which the child might be allergic. Questionnaires were prepared to record whether the child had ever been treated by a certain drug and mothers were questioned concerning adverse symptoms or reactions of the child to these drugs. Unless she was certain both that her child had been given a certain drug and had had an unfavorable reaction to it, that particular drug was not checked off as having been given. In addition, each mother was questioned as to allergic symptoms—hives, rashes, head colds in her child.

Using these forms, drug histories were obtained on patients seen in private practice of a pediatric allergist as well as in the general pediatric outpatient clinic of the Rochester General Hospital. This study included 500 infants and children ranging in age from two months to 15 years. Three hundred and thirty-two (66.4 per cent) of the 500 children had a history of allergic disease. The remaining 168 patients (33.6 per cent) had no history of allergic disease and were considered nonallergic children.

With regard to penicillin, 10 per cent of the allergic children had reactions whereas no reactions occurred in the non-allergic children.

The sulfonamides caused reactions in both groups. Acetyl salicyclic acid (aspirin), the drug commonly used in pediatric practice, was taken by 231, of whom 191 were allergic. Phenobarbital was taken by 260 of the children of whom 183 were allergic.

What do we learn about allergy by these careful testings by Drs. Glaser and Johnstone?

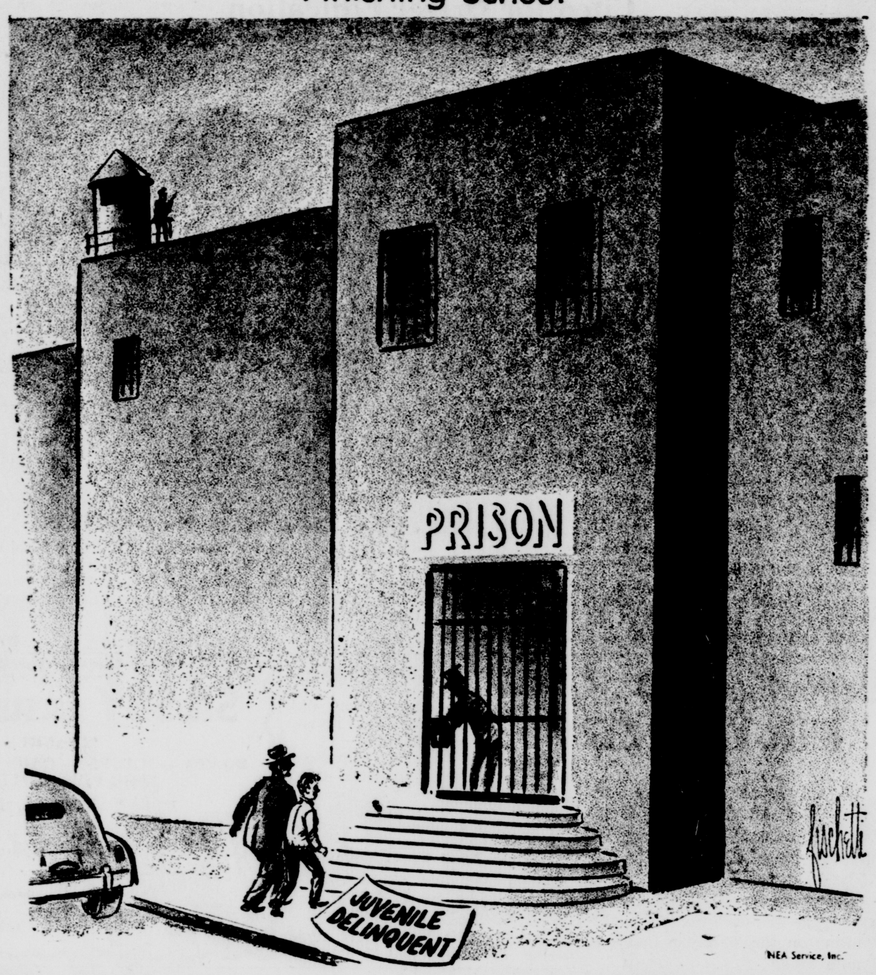

We learn (a) that allergy is much more common in children than was previous thought and (b) only one nonallergic child had a side reaction (c) allergic reactions were slight in most cases. "These studies revealed a much higher number of drug reactions in allergic children, 20 per cent as compared with 2.4 per cent, an eightfold difference."

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington (NEA)—A fight for control of the Federal Housing Administration is now going on. It's what's behind the FBI's investigation of charges of irregularities in two of this 20-year-old government agency's programs.

Washington housing experts outside the government offer this explanation for the surprising developments which now cast suspicion on the entire housing program and threaten its very existence.

In addition to the administration's housing program legislation, which has passed the House and is now before the Senate, there is also a housing reorganization bill before Congress. This plan would give full control of the FHA to Ex-Congressman Albert M. Cole of Kansas, housing and home finance administrator.

Guy T. O. Hollyday, Baltimore mortgage banker who has been FHA commissioner for the past year, has resisted this subordination of his agency to HHFA Administrator Cole.

Hollyday carried this fight to the White House. He was supported by the real estate, home building and mortgage banking associations. These organizations are officially staying out of the latest developments in this dispute.

But suspicion is rife in building industry circles. They claim when the fight for control over FHA got too hot to handle, the charges of past irregularities were used as an excuse for Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams to demand Hollyday's resignation.

No one in the White House has cast any suspicion on Hollyday. He is described everywhere as a fine Christian gentleman who won national renown for his sponsorship of the Baltimore slum-clearance plan. But he is now made the goat in a Washington fight for power.

Testifying before both Houses of Congress on behalf of the mortgage bankers, over a year ago, Hollyday warned that the agency should have more inspectors. Congress apparently did not heed this recommendation.

This may have resulted in some of the irregularities in the home modernization and repair program, for which Hollyday is held responsible.

The number of cases of fraud in this home repair program has not been indicated and probably will not be known until a full investigation is completed.

Whatever overcharging there has been in this home repair business has had to be collected in small amounts at a time. The totals are big. Last year FHA insured 2,244,000 of these home modernization loans for a total of $1,344,278,000. This makes the average loan $600.

For the 20 years FHA has been in home repair business, over 16 million loans have been insured for a total of $7.4 billion. This makes the average deal about $460. This money went to repairing porches, reroofing houses, waterproofing basements or modernizating plumbing.

The other field of activity in which FHA irregularities are charged is in "mortgaging out" on FHA insured loans for emergency housing. Section 608 of the housing act under which this was possible was in effect from 1942 to 1950. It worked like this:

A BUILDER PLANNED, say, a 100-unit housing development. He estimated that his cost would be $1 million. He got FHA approval for an insured mortgage for this amount. By efficient operations the builder put up his development at a cost of $800,000. But he collected the full $1 million from the lending institution. The $200,000 difference he pocketed as a "windfall" profit.

This builder would still be required to pay back the full $1 million. This he would do from current sale or rental income. And the government in this case would lose nothing.

The only chance for the government to lose on this would be where the development goes bankrupt and FHA is forced to take over and operate the property. Housing Administrator Cole says there are 251 of these cases on record, with a total value of $75 million. But whether the government will lose all or any of this is not known.

Senators Seem to Realize McCarthy-Army Case Is Getting Out of Hand

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 20—Several of the members of the United States Senate are slowly awakening to the fact that they have created a Frankenstein monster in what they are doing in the case of the dispute between the civilian officials of the army and the junior senator from Wisconsin, Joseph R. McCarthy, Republican.

For, any time in the future a department or agent of the executive branch of the government wishes to restrain a senator who refuses to do its bidding, it can dig out of its files some letter or communication and proclaim that the request was "improper"—as it has done in the case of McCarthy versus the Office of the Legal Counsel of the Army. It can publicize the charges, and the Senate, to be consistent with the precedent it now is establishing, must then immediately ask a committee to investigate and the senator accused must temporarily step out of his position on the committee and perhaps lose his right to cross-examine witnesses. This immediately subjects him to a curtailment of his rights as a United States senator. But this can be legalized because the Senate itself may, by a two-thirds vote, expel a senator. Hence, to take him off a committee and deny him the right to face his accusers could be construed as implicitly within the rules of the Senate.

Up to now Congress has had the thing all to itself. It can pass laws forbidding executive officials from lobbying or using "improper means" to influence Congress. It can impeach anyone in the judicial and executive branches of the government. Such is the power the people gave Congress under the Constitution.

But now, without benefit of constitutional amendment, a way has been devised whereby in the future a majority party with a narrow margin of one vote can get another vote or two if charges can be brought which in the eyes of the people will discredit a senator.

Many senators are vulnerable to attack because some of them own large holdings of stocks and bonds in companies with defense contracts. Charles E. Wilson was forced to sell his holdings before he could be confirmed as secretary of defense, and public opinion would probably demand that senators do likewise if the issue were ever pressed in a specific case. Also senators have been known in the past to vote on pending bills which directly or indirectly could affect the value of the investments they hold. Unlike judges, they do not uniformly disqualify themselves from voting.

Then there is the matter of outside income received by members of Congress. Several members continue to get fees from their law firms. Some accept fees for public speaking from organizations which have legislation pending in Congress. It would seem logical, after the McCarthy case is over, that efforts may be made to force all these cases into the open and then deprive senators from participating in the trial of their own cases.

The senators who look upon the prosecution of the McCarthy case with approbation today may some day wish they hadn't. For—as Senator Mundt of South Dakota, acting chairman of the McCarthy case, has said publicly—neither side has violated or committed a crime and, unless a perjury emerges, no punishment can be meted out.

Then what is the present controversy all about? It is really a new kind of public trial carried on in the name of the United States Senate, with the defendant one of its members whose views happen to be unpopular with a segement of the electorate and and whose methods in the conduct of his investigating committee have drawn sharp criticism from various quarters. The accusation that "improper means" were used by him to secure from an executive department special treatment for a staff member of his committee is just a trumped-up charge and, though the Pentagon has often been the recipient of many oral requests for special treatment in the past, no such case was ever brought into the open before.

It is, in brief, a new way by which the executive branch of the government, by an indictment in the court of public opinion, can in the future apply restraint or pressure upon members of the Senate, either because they may have failed to vote for the appropriations desired by the executive or because they may have too penetratingly exercised their power to investigate departments. It could be a far-reaching precedent and had better be carried now by the Wisconsin senator to the floor of the Senate for decision by roll-call vote before more precedents are established that will make the Senate a subservient tool of the executive branch of the government.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, April 19—There are many cases of favoritism to pets of powerful individuals which make that of Private David Schine petty by comparison. The one I am about to cite here was scandalous, disgraceful and a legitimate footnote to history.

Roy Cohn, counsel for Joe McCarthy's Senate inquiry, is alleged to have asked the Army to excuse Private Schine for a few hours so that Schine could finish some work-in-progress for the committee. It is charged that Cohn threatened to do terrible things to "The Army," but Cohn says these were facetious cracks and accepted as such at the time. Anyway, it is obvious that Cohn couldn't do anything terrible "to" the Army even if he had wanted to. And Cohn had demonstrated his ardent loyalty to the United States by his zeal in prosecuting a roster of traitors including the two Rosenbergs who went to the electric chair.

I refer now to the case of Lieut. Com. Earl Miller, the personal protege of Eleanor Roosevelt. Miller got his commission on a silver tray, but that is a trifle compared to the favors he got later.

This old woman secretly persuaded George T. Bye, her "literary" agent, to go to Gene Tunney, then a captain in the Navy in charge of the program of mass-athletics, and ask Gene to give Miller a soft job as instructor at the Pensacola Naval Air Station. Tunny did give Miller this job in response to this intervention and for no other reason. And there was an element of implied blackmail in this because as Tunney told me after the war, he granted Miller this favor only because he apprehended that if he refused he might be transferred to some humiliating or otherwise disagreeable duty as punishment for lese majeste. He had not even considered Miller for this nice job at Pensacola until Bye relayed Eleanor's request which he construed as a demand or command. Bye told me she picked on him because she didn't want to show up in the deal herself. She knew Bye and Tunney were neighbors in hither Connecticut.

I have two checks made out by Eleanor Roosevelt to Earl Miller on successive months, one for $250 and the other for $350, which bear Miller's endorsement.

These checks were not obtained by stealth. A domestic servant in the White House emptied a wastebasket containing a lot of discard ed cancelled checks. This individual kept a number of them for the autographs. When the Earl Miller story broke, the servant sent me these two and two others out of the same batch written to and endorsed by two other persons.

The wife of Earl Miller, a pretty young woman named Simone, had been a hostess, or head-waitress, in an Albany hotel. Miller, twice married before, had served as sergeant of the guard of New York state police of the governor's mansion. One previous marriage had been performed at the Roosevelt's Hyde Park home. One of these marriages was annulled. The other ended in divorce.

Miller and Simone were married under the auspices of the grand patroness, but not in the White House.

Having received the assignment to Pensacola, Miller bought a small house off the reservation and caught hell from the commanding officer when the news got around that he and his wife had entertained the wife of the commander-in-chief and her secretary, a female of sallow disposition known variously as Scheider and Thompson. The commanding officer is supposed to dress the ship with side-boys on such occasions and here he was learning about the visit of the First Lady of the Universe per scuttlebutt.

Later, Miller was transferred to Mitchel Field, L. I., convenient to New York but a long way from Albany where Mrs. Miller had now returned. In New York, Mrs. Roosevelt had a very modest apartment, as she used to intimate, which proved, however, to have seven rooms, one of the biggest apartments in that part of town. The Scheider or Thompson character had a separate apartment on another floor during a period of great shortage of housing.

After the war, Mrs. Miller decided to seek due process in court in Albany. She was soon called upon by an attorney who seemed to represent nobody in particular but frightened her with talk of charges of blackmail. John Glavin, Mrs. Miller's attorney, was made of tougher stuff. He stood down Charlie Poletti and Milton Diamond, law partners of Franklin D. Jr. He also challenged Scheider or Thompson to do her damnedest when she, too, hinted at charges of blackmail and extortion. Poletti and Diamond refused to say whom they represented and a third lawyer, who horned in, likewise went demure on being asked to say who his client was.

In the end, Mrs. Miller accepted another lawyer and got a legal separation with an allowance for her own support and that of her two children. John Glavin held back certain documents until he got his fee. He finally was satisfied but he has refused to say how much he got or who paid it.

In the progress of the scandal it was learned that Miller had built a niche into a wall in his home in Loudonville, near Albany, to accommodate a rare vase of crystal which had been presented, God knows why, to the late Sara Roosevelt, Eleanor's mother-in-law, by the Finnish government during the New York World Fair. The home had that $40,000 high-suburban look, red brick with a slate roof and dense evergreens to shut off ventilation.

You never have read about Earl Miller's easy deal at Pensacola and at Mitchel Field in the New York Times, the Herald Tribune, Time-Life or any of the other smear-papers which have been having hysterics over the blow to the morale of the armed forces dealt by revelations of favoritism to Private Dave Schine. This job of favoritism in time of shooting-war didn't measure up to their psychiatric or journalistic standards.

Detroit (AP)—On her 90th birthday Mrs. Minnie Weitzel looked back at her motherhood of two families of nine children each. She had nine children by her first husband, who left her a widow in 1913. Then she married Martin Weitzel, a widower, who also had nine children. "It was like starting motherhood all over again," said Mrs. Weitzel. She now has almost 140 descendants and would like to have 180. She said: "That will be 10 times the children I had. And it will sort of round out my life."

Their criticisms really are quite empty in this case. For they talk as if a truce were the great goal in Indo-China.

But they have not said what they would do if, as likely, it turned out to be a smashing political defeat for the free countries.

Until they face up to this question, they are hardly in position to assail the United States. We are making a a display of our hard attitude to inject the note of realism at Geneva which ought to characterize the thinking of diplomacy among the French and British as well.

PATRIOTS' DAY

"Here once the embattled farmers stood
And fired the shot heard round the world."

So the philosopher and poet Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote about the battle of Concord on April 19, 1775. This was the first real battle of the Revolution, with losses on both sides.

Earlier in the day the British force of 1800 had encountered 60 or 70 Minute-Men drawn up on the common of neighboring Lexington. "Disperse, ye rebels!" cried Major Pitcairn, the British commander. When they failed to do so, his troops fired, killing seven colonials but suffering no loss themselves. The Minute-Men then dispersed. Ever since then Lexington has made the most of this priority in conflict and minimized the fact that the first real fighting was at Concord. It has been said that "The battle of Lexington was found at Concord by men from nearby Acton."

The Massachusetts legislature discreetly took no sides when they made April 19th a holiday under the title of Patriots' Day. It is a day on which all Americans may well pause a moment to think of that little group of heroes with honor and gratitude.

'These Days'

OPPENHEIMER AND LIBERALISM

For many months, I received, as did thousands of other Americans, circular brochures issued in Chicago by atomic scientists, many of them still employed by the Government of the United States, who differed with the official policy of this country on the use of information concerning atomic fission and the prospects of a thermonuclear bomb.

For the layman, not particularly versed or interested in science or in the disputations among scientists, these brochures presented the picture of employes of the Government opposing their employer. The argument ran that, as citizens, these government-employed scientists had as much right as any other citizen to express their opinions or to conduct a propaganda in favor of their point of view. Most of them supported the concept that secrecy in this field was wrong; the expansion of these bombs as instruments of war was immoral; that the Baruch Plan in the United Nations was unduly anti-Russian and so forth.

The immorality of the expansion of the bomb into more terrible instruments of warfare cannot be denied, but the immorality of leaving this country defenseless and a prey to Russia also cannot be denied. It seemed to me at the time that these scientists were suffering from the guilt of their own ingenuity. On the other hand, so much of their argument was in line with the Russian position in the United Nations that it was impossible not to wonder whether they were not guided more by their politics than by moral indignation.

J. Robert Oppenheimer's opposition to the development of the thermonuclear bomb must be related in time to his knowledge of the work on the thermonuclear bomb that was actually being done in Soviet Russia. He should have known how much knowledge of this subject Dr. Klaus Fuchs possessed; he probably knew how much the well-informed Britishers, Donald MacLean and Guy Burgess, possessed. We all know that Dr. Bruno Pontecorvo escaped to Russia in 1950 and that it was generally presumed that he took with him a sample of tritium, which is a chief ingredient of the hydrogen bomb. A scientist of Dr. Oppenheimer's stature could assess the danger of Pontecorvo's desertion.

Men who are empolyed on these secret defensive measures have a free choice to accept such employment and to give up their private opinions or to refuse such employment and to hold to their private opinions. Professor Francis W. Coker, of Yale University, stated the case of the modern liberal as follows:

"When the modern liberal has challenged the reasonableness or justice of particular orders made by official spokesmen for a ruling group, he has sometimes been rebuked as an advocate of disorder or disunity; or if he has appealed for the restoration of earlier freedoms, he has been rebuffed as one vainly trying to revive outmoded ideas. When, in a community with a democratic form of government, he challenges the justice or practicality of a particular decision of the official political majority, he is represented as rejecting the principle of majority rule. . . ."

This, of course, relates to the man who is not bound by commitments other than his own sense of responsibility. The atomic scientist, however, accepted employment in what is actually a military operation, the provision of adequate weapons for defense of the United States. Such persons were bound to secrecy because the Government so chose and the Government alone has the legal right to determine, either by Act of Congress or by Executive Regulation, what is to be secret and what is to be publicly disclosed. If each private citizen were to use his own judgment and choice in such matters, there would be no orderly government; there would be anarchy.

Actually, what the scientists of liberal persuasions sought to establish was that private opinion ought to prevail over government decisions when a conflict of view appeared. That undoubtedly was the view of Julius Rosenberg. His advocates adopted the view that as there was no secret about the atomic sciences, he disclosed nothing secret. It is a view widely held these days. The answer is that it is for the Government to decide what it wishes to disclose about its weapons.

This, it seems to me, is the issue in the Oppenheimer case. When Dr. Oppenheimer was approached by Haakon Chevalier to disclose secrets, his responsibility was to report instantly. That he did not do. The rest is commentary.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

ALLERGY TO DRUGS IN CHILDREN

During World War 1 a whole unit of engineers was sent to our hospital, many of them suffering with scarlet fever and the others because they were contacts. One of the patients was well known to me as he was an intercollegiate quarter-mile runner. He complained bitterly about being sent to hospital because he was not sick, had no symptoms of scarlet fever except a small rash. I asked him if he had taken any medicine that day and he admitted taking a headache powder. The ward medical officer and I, because he was not sick, decided that he was likely allergic to the drug in the headache powder and within a few hours he was clear of the rash.

In Annals of Allergy, Minneapolis, Drs. J. Glaser and D. E. Johnstone report their investigation of drugs, used in the treatment of children, to which the child might be allergic. Questionnaires were prepared to record whether the child had ever been treated by a certain drug and mothers were questioned concerning adverse symptoms or reactions of the child to these drugs. Unless she was certain both that her child had been given a certain drug and had had an unfavorable reaction to it, that particular drug was not checked off as having been given. In addition, each mother was questioned as to allergic symptoms—hives, rashes, head colds in her child.

Using these forms, drug histories were obtained on patients seen in private practice of a pediatric allergist as well as in the general pediatric outpatient clinic of the Rochester General Hospital. This study included 500 infants and children ranging in age from two months to 15 years. Three hundred and thirty-two (66.4 per cent) of the 500 children had a history of allergic disease. The remaining 168 patients (33.6 per cent) had no history of allergic disease and were considered nonallergic children.

With regard to penicillin, 10 per cent of the allergic children had reactions whereas no reactions occurred in the non-allergic children.

The sulfonamides caused reactions in both groups. Acetyl salicyclic acid (aspirin), the drug commonly used in pediatric practice, was taken by 231, of whom 191 were allergic. Phenobarbital was taken by 260 of the children of whom 183 were allergic.

What do we learn about allergy by these careful testings by Drs. Glaser and Johnstone?

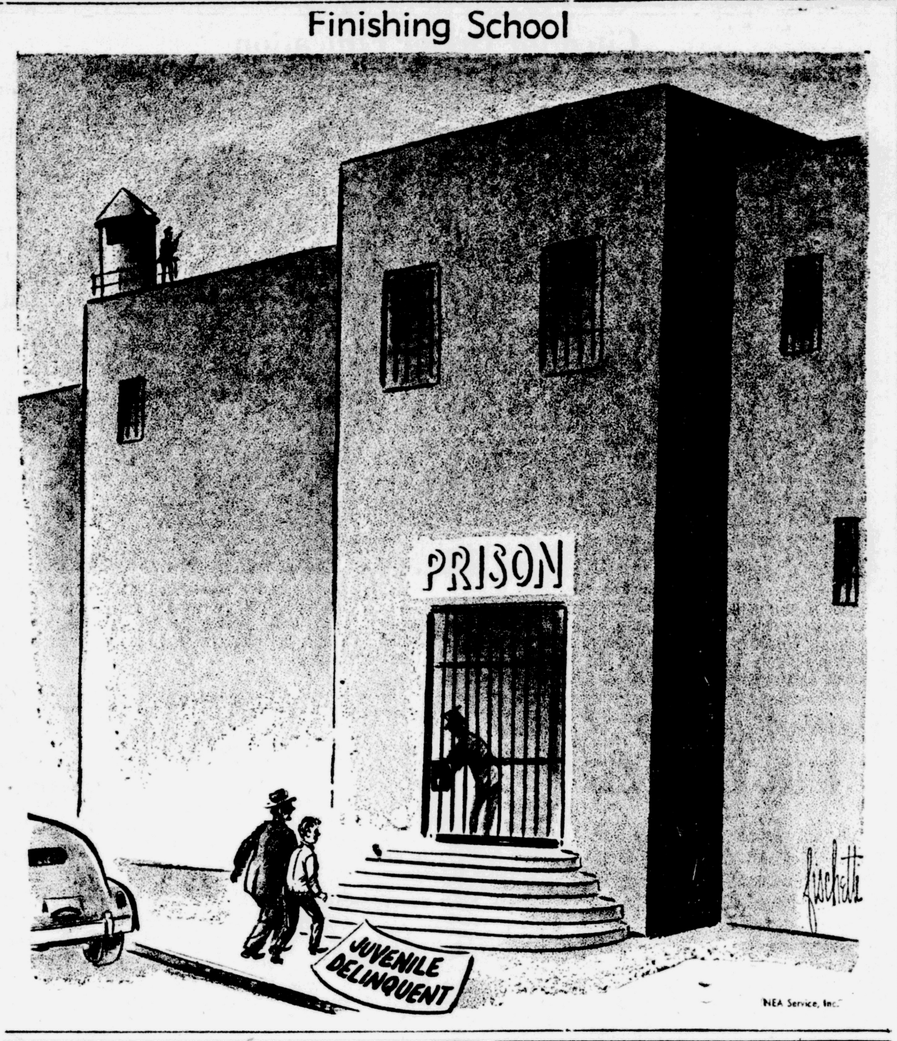

We learn (a) that allergy is much more common in children than was previous thought and (b) only one nonallergic child had a side reaction (c) allergic reactions were slight in most cases. "These studies revealed a much higher number of drug reactions in allergic children, 20 per cent as compared with 2.4 per cent, an eightfold difference."

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington (NEA)—A fight for control of the Federal Housing Administration is now going on. It's what's behind the FBI's investigation of charges of irregularities in two of this 20-year-old government agency's programs.

Washington housing experts outside the government offer this explanation for the surprising developments which now cast suspicion on the entire housing program and threaten its very existence.

In addition to the administration's housing program legislation, which has passed the House and is now before the Senate, there is also a housing reorganization bill before Congress. This plan would give full control of the FHA to Ex-Congressman Albert M. Cole of Kansas, housing and home finance administrator.

Guy T. O. Hollyday, Baltimore mortgage banker who has been FHA commissioner for the past year, has resisted this subordination of his agency to HHFA Administrator Cole.

Hollyday carried this fight to the White House. He was supported by the real estate, home building and mortgage banking associations. These organizations are officially staying out of the latest developments in this dispute.

But suspicion is rife in building industry circles. They claim when the fight for control over FHA got too hot to handle, the charges of past irregularities were used as an excuse for Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams to demand Hollyday's resignation.

No one in the White House has cast any suspicion on Hollyday. He is described everywhere as a fine Christian gentleman who won national renown for his sponsorship of the Baltimore slum-clearance plan. But he is now made the goat in a Washington fight for power.

Testifying before both Houses of Congress on behalf of the mortgage bankers, over a year ago, Hollyday warned that the agency should have more inspectors. Congress apparently did not heed this recommendation.

This may have resulted in some of the irregularities in the home modernization and repair program, for which Hollyday is held responsible.

The number of cases of fraud in this home repair program has not been indicated and probably will not be known until a full investigation is completed.

Whatever overcharging there has been in this home repair business has had to be collected in small amounts at a time. The totals are big. Last year FHA insured 2,244,000 of these home modernization loans for a total of $1,344,278,000. This makes the average loan $600.

For the 20 years FHA has been in home repair business, over 16 million loans have been insured for a total of $7.4 billion. This makes the average deal about $460. This money went to repairing porches, reroofing houses, waterproofing basements or modernizating plumbing.

The other field of activity in which FHA irregularities are charged is in "mortgaging out" on FHA insured loans for emergency housing. Section 608 of the housing act under which this was possible was in effect from 1942 to 1950. It worked like this:

A BUILDER PLANNED, say, a 100-unit housing development. He estimated that his cost would be $1 million. He got FHA approval for an insured mortgage for this amount. By efficient operations the builder put up his development at a cost of $800,000. But he collected the full $1 million from the lending institution. The $200,000 difference he pocketed as a "windfall" profit.

This builder would still be required to pay back the full $1 million. This he would do from current sale or rental income. And the government in this case would lose nothing.

The only chance for the government to lose on this would be where the development goes bankrupt and FHA is forced to take over and operate the property. Housing Administrator Cole says there are 251 of these cases on record, with a total value of $75 million. But whether the government will lose all or any of this is not known.

Senators Seem to Realize McCarthy-Army Case Is Getting Out of Hand

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 20—Several of the members of the United States Senate are slowly awakening to the fact that they have created a Frankenstein monster in what they are doing in the case of the dispute between the civilian officials of the army and the junior senator from Wisconsin, Joseph R. McCarthy, Republican.

For, any time in the future a department or agent of the executive branch of the government wishes to restrain a senator who refuses to do its bidding, it can dig out of its files some letter or communication and proclaim that the request was "improper"—as it has done in the case of McCarthy versus the Office of the Legal Counsel of the Army. It can publicize the charges, and the Senate, to be consistent with the precedent it now is establishing, must then immediately ask a committee to investigate and the senator accused must temporarily step out of his position on the committee and perhaps lose his right to cross-examine witnesses. This immediately subjects him to a curtailment of his rights as a United States senator. But this can be legalized because the Senate itself may, by a two-thirds vote, expel a senator. Hence, to take him off a committee and deny him the right to face his accusers could be construed as implicitly within the rules of the Senate.

Up to now Congress has had the thing all to itself. It can pass laws forbidding executive officials from lobbying or using "improper means" to influence Congress. It can impeach anyone in the judicial and executive branches of the government. Such is the power the people gave Congress under the Constitution.

But now, without benefit of constitutional amendment, a way has been devised whereby in the future a majority party with a narrow margin of one vote can get another vote or two if charges can be brought which in the eyes of the people will discredit a senator.

Many senators are vulnerable to attack because some of them own large holdings of stocks and bonds in companies with defense contracts. Charles E. Wilson was forced to sell his holdings before he could be confirmed as secretary of defense, and public opinion would probably demand that senators do likewise if the issue were ever pressed in a specific case. Also senators have been known in the past to vote on pending bills which directly or indirectly could affect the value of the investments they hold. Unlike judges, they do not uniformly disqualify themselves from voting.

Then there is the matter of outside income received by members of Congress. Several members continue to get fees from their law firms. Some accept fees for public speaking from organizations which have legislation pending in Congress. It would seem logical, after the McCarthy case is over, that efforts may be made to force all these cases into the open and then deprive senators from participating in the trial of their own cases.

The senators who look upon the prosecution of the McCarthy case with approbation today may some day wish they hadn't. For—as Senator Mundt of South Dakota, acting chairman of the McCarthy case, has said publicly—neither side has violated or committed a crime and, unless a perjury emerges, no punishment can be meted out.

Then what is the present controversy all about? It is really a new kind of public trial carried on in the name of the United States Senate, with the defendant one of its members whose views happen to be unpopular with a segement of the electorate and and whose methods in the conduct of his investigating committee have drawn sharp criticism from various quarters. The accusation that "improper means" were used by him to secure from an executive department special treatment for a staff member of his committee is just a trumped-up charge and, though the Pentagon has often been the recipient of many oral requests for special treatment in the past, no such case was ever brought into the open before.

It is, in brief, a new way by which the executive branch of the government, by an indictment in the court of public opinion, can in the future apply restraint or pressure upon members of the Senate, either because they may have failed to vote for the appropriations desired by the executive or because they may have too penetratingly exercised their power to investigate departments. It could be a far-reaching precedent and had better be carried now by the Wisconsin senator to the floor of the Senate for decision by roll-call vote before more precedents are established that will make the Senate a subservient tool of the executive branch of the government.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, April 19—There are many cases of favoritism to pets of powerful individuals which make that of Private David Schine petty by comparison. The one I am about to cite here was scandalous, disgraceful and a legitimate footnote to history.

Roy Cohn, counsel for Joe McCarthy's Senate inquiry, is alleged to have asked the Army to excuse Private Schine for a few hours so that Schine could finish some work-in-progress for the committee. It is charged that Cohn threatened to do terrible things to "The Army," but Cohn says these were facetious cracks and accepted as such at the time. Anyway, it is obvious that Cohn couldn't do anything terrible "to" the Army even if he had wanted to. And Cohn had demonstrated his ardent loyalty to the United States by his zeal in prosecuting a roster of traitors including the two Rosenbergs who went to the electric chair.

I refer now to the case of Lieut. Com. Earl Miller, the personal protege of Eleanor Roosevelt. Miller got his commission on a silver tray, but that is a trifle compared to the favors he got later.

This old woman secretly persuaded George T. Bye, her "literary" agent, to go to Gene Tunney, then a captain in the Navy in charge of the program of mass-athletics, and ask Gene to give Miller a soft job as instructor at the Pensacola Naval Air Station. Tunny did give Miller this job in response to this intervention and for no other reason. And there was an element of implied blackmail in this because as Tunney told me after the war, he granted Miller this favor only because he apprehended that if he refused he might be transferred to some humiliating or otherwise disagreeable duty as punishment for lese majeste. He had not even considered Miller for this nice job at Pensacola until Bye relayed Eleanor's request which he construed as a demand or command. Bye told me she picked on him because she didn't want to show up in the deal herself. She knew Bye and Tunney were neighbors in hither Connecticut.

I have two checks made out by Eleanor Roosevelt to Earl Miller on successive months, one for $250 and the other for $350, which bear Miller's endorsement.

These checks were not obtained by stealth. A domestic servant in the White House emptied a wastebasket containing a lot of discarded cancelled checks. This individual kept a number of them for the autographs. When the Earl Miller story broke, the servant sent me these two and two others out of the same batch written to and endorsed by two other persons.

The wife of Earl Miller, a pretty young woman named Simone, had been a hostess, or head-waitress, in an Albany hotel. Miller, twice married before, had served as sergeant of the guard of New York state police of the governor's mansion. One previous marriage had been performed at the Roosevelt's Hyde Park home. One of these marriages was annulled. The other ended in divorce.

Miller and Simone were married under the auspices of the grand patroness, but not in the White House.

Having received the assignment to Pensacola, Miller bought a small house off the reservation and caught hell from the commanding officer when the news got around that he and his wife had entertained the wife of the commander-in-chief and her secretary, a female of sallow disposition known variously as Scheider and Thompson. The commanding officer is supposed to dress the ship with side-boys on such occasions and here he was learning about the visit of the First Lady of the Universe per scuttlebutt.

Later, Miller was transferred to Mitchel Field, L. I., convenient to New York but a long way from Albany where Mrs. Miller had now returned. In New York, Mrs. Roosevelt had a very modest apartment, as she used to intimate, which proved, however, to have seven rooms, one of the biggest apartments in that part of town. The Scheider or Thompson character had a separate apartment on another floor during a period of great shortage of housing.

After the war, Mrs. Miller decided to seek due process in court in Albany. She was soon called upon by an attorney who seemed to represent nobody in particular but frightened her with talk of charges of blackmail. John Glavin, Mrs. Miller's attorney, was made of tougher stuff. He stood down Charlie Poletti and Milton Diamond, law partners of Franklin D. Jr. He also challenged Scheider or Thompson to do her damnedest when she, too, hinted at charges of blackmail and extortion. Poletti and Diamond refused to say whom they represented and a third lawyer, who horned in, likewise went demure on being asked to say who his client was.

In the end, Mrs. Miller accepted another lawyer and got a legal separation with an allowance for her own support and that of her two children. John Glavin held back certain documents until he got his fee. He finally was satisfied but he has refused to say how much he got or who paid it.

In the progress of the scandal it was learned that Miller had built a niche into a wall in his home in Loudonville, near Albany, to accommodate a rare vase of crystal which had been presented, God knows why, to the late Sara Roosevelt, Eleanor's mother-in-law, by the Finnish government during the New York World Fair. The home had that $40,000 high-suburban look, red brick with a slate roof and dense evergreens to shut off ventilation.

You never have read about Earl Miller's easy deal at Pensacola and at Mitchel Field in the New York Times, the Herald Tribune, Time-Life or any of the other smear-papers which have been having hysterics over the blow to the morale of the armed forces dealt by revelations of favoritism to Private Dave Schine. This job of favoritism in time of shooting-war didn't measure up to their psychiatric or journalistic standards.

Mrs. Tyrell Finds Whitehall Changed On Recent Visit

Mrs. Anna M. Tyrell of 191 Elmendorf street was born in the little village of Whitehall in northern New York state.

She re-visited her native village recently and was quite amazed to find that it had become suddenly rather famous. It seems that what is believed to be a sizeable deposit of pitchblende, one of the sources of uranium, has been discovered at Skene Mountain.

"Eventually," says Mrs. Tyrell, "this discovery may mean a great change for our little town." Her most recent visit to Whitehall was to see her brother, A. J. Wheeler, who is convalescing from a recent illness.

Mrs. Tyrell brought back with her a clipping from a Whitehall newspaper telling about the discovery by a Colonial Airline pilot who became intrigued with the manner in which his compass performed when he flew over Skene Mountain. The pilot visited the mountain with a Geiger counter, getting a postive response, and later returned again with his old geology professor at Union College, a government mining engineer, a representative of the State Department of Commerce and some GE officials and technicians. Their survey appeared to support the pilot's findings.

It is believed it may be necessary to clear many, if not all, of the houses on the sides of the mountain in order to work the deposit—which would create the dilemma of doing away with housing at the time many additional workers were being brought into the community to work the project.

Penney Company Plans Expansion

New York, April 20—Stockholders of J. C. Penney Company, nation-wide department store organization, heard at the annual meeting today that 1954 will see the company's largest new-store expansion program in more than 20 years.

A. W. Hughes, president, said the company will open at least 30 new stores this year in communities where it has not previously operated stores.

In the planning stage is a total of 63 new stores including 46 which, he said, will be surburban or shopping center stores to meet the increasing demand for shopping facilities outside the larger cities.

In addition, 53 exisiting stores will be relocated in new buildings in towns long served by Penney stores, compared with 17 last years.

Also, the company will continue an extensive program of remodeling and improving existing stores. Last year 176 stores were improved by refixturing or by adding selling space and at least this number will be improved this year he said.

Optimistic about future business conditions, Hughes told the stockholders:

"No one could be privileged to share in the general operation of a nation-wide concern, located in nearly 1,600 communities, without having faith in the vitality of our American system and our free way of life.

"The continued increase in population, the movement to suburbia, the urge to better living—all help to provide a constantly enlarging area of opportunity for our company. We believe that the Penney company is in an excellent position to take advantage of this opportunity."

Eisenhower Planning To Remove Atom Fear

Los Angeles, April 20 (AP)—President Eisenhower plans an international conference of scientists to explore "the benign and peaceful uses of atomic energy," says Lewis L. Strauss.

The chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission made this disclosure last night in addressing the Los Angeles World Affairs Council. He said it is the President's intention to ask a national American scientific organization to call the meeting later, this year.

Strauss, in stating its purpose, quoted the President's words: "To hasten the day when the fear of the atom will begin to disappear from the minds of the people and the governments of the east and the west."

The AEC chairman's announcement came during his discussion of Eisenhower's Dec. 8 speech, in which the President called upon the world's atomic powers to set up an international agency to develop peaceful atomic pursuits.

The nations participating, said Eisenhower, "must, of course," include the Soviet Union. Strauss, amplifying this point during a question-answer period following his address, said the nations participating must include, under the President's plan, the three powers in the atomic energy area—the United States, Great Britain and Russia.

"The United States proposal," said Strauss, "is not just another move in the chess game of world politics nor is it primarily a disarmament formula."

Worst Water Shortage For N. Y. in 30 Years

New York, April 20 (AP)—Mayor Robert F. Wagner has declared a water emergency, warning that New Yorkers face the most serious water shortage since the city's modern reservoir system was built 30 years ago.

The mayor issued a series of executive orders yesterday to stop waste of water. He banned use of hoses to wash sidewalks or sprinkle lawns and gardens, and ordered city departments to take conservation steps.

The shortage, Wagner said, is more serious than in 1949 and 1950, the most recent years in which New York was caught without adequate water supplies.

"A deficiency of rainfall since June, 1953," has lowered reservoirs to 72.1 per cent of capacity, Wagner said. Even in the water shortage year of 1949 reservoirs were full and overflowing in the spring, he added.

Stronghold Captured

Rangoon, Burma, April 20 (AP)—The Burmese army announced today it had captured a key stronghold commanding a supply route into southern Thailand from Karen rebels and their Chinese guerrilla allies. The army said troops operating in the southern Tenasserim coastal strip had seized the town of Myawadi as part of a drive launched early in April to clear the area of the rebel tribesmen and the Chinese. The Karens reportedly fled the town before the attack, leaving it defended by only about 300 Chinese.

Reports Presented On Overcrowding In Village School

Woodstock, April 19—Two separate fact-finding committees met Thursday night at Woodstock Elementary School with members of Woodstock School District 2 board of trustees to report on their findings in connection with present overcrowding in the Woodstock School.

Mrs. Carl Hubbell and her committee first presented an outline of their findings as a result of conferences with officials of the State Education Department at Albany and the Onteora Central School. It was in substance a compilation of information, including questions posed at a recent meeting with the Woodstock School board, and answers, amounting to an exposition of the ideal elements of centralization. John Egan and his committee gave a factual report which included a history of the school, how is solved its problem in 1949, statistical data as to budgets, assessments and suggestions for a solution to the present problem.

According to Adolf Heckeroth, chairman of the school board, preliminary plans for the proposed three-room addition to the school are in preparation by Albert Graeser, architect. These will be presented in four weeks by the board for the consideration of voters in the district. Only the budget for the existing school will be presented at the annual school meeting Tuesday, May 4.

Discrepancies Apparent

Certain discrepancies are apparent between the Hubbell and Egan reports. According to Mrs. Hubbell, who with her committee arranged a visit to the Onteora School to discuss aspects of the Onteora centralization with officials there, "We carried away the impression that the people of our district and Onteora could enjoy a relationship of mutual trust and regard, rooted in the common interest of providing the best educational advantages for all the children in the area."

Egan said in his report, however, "All those who advocate that Woodstock District 2 join the Onteora centralization assume, or take it for granted, that the Onteora Central School has the capacity for accommodating our seventh and eighth grades, as well as our high school students. The official record, as filed by the Onteora School Board with the State Department of Education, shows conclusively that this is not the fact. This record, consisting of the official annual budget report for the school year 1953-54 (the present year) was filed with the Bureau of Field Services in August 1953. The report, among other things, is required to show the official pupil-capacity of the existing school structures, the actual number of students enrolled for two previous years and the anticipated enrollment for the year covered by the budget which, in this case, was the present school year 1953-54.

"In bold type the Onteora School board stated in the report that the total pupil capacity of its school structures was nine hundred twenty (920) pupils."

Onteora Overcrowded

Egan asked, "What did the report show as to enrollment. It showed that for the school year 1951-52 the enrollment was 534, and for the year 1952-53 it was 905. Thus, as of the end of the year (June 20, 1953) Onteora School, according to its own board's officially filed report, had an available capacity for only 15 additional pupils."

For the present year, he said, "the board gave for 1953-54, the figure of 980. Thus, it conclusively appears from official reports that the Onteora School is presently overcrowded to the extent of sixty (60) pupils.

"As previously pointed out," he went on, "we now have 34 pupils in our seventh and eighth grades, and 41 in high school, or a total in all (grades 7-12) of 75. How could these 75 Woodstock pupils be accommodated in the Onteora School which is already overcrowded to the extent of 60 pupils?"

Mrs. Hubbell's committee asked the question: "If Onteora's school population increases and certain classrooms become crowded how would it provide for additional rooms? With a bond issue?" Included in her report is the following answer: "No, the budget is large enough to provide funds toward a building program, so that the addition of a room can be provided for within the budget, and paid off in that year without the expenses of interest charges. By a small increase in taxes in one year rooms can be added and they are paid for in full so the tax rate does not have to remain up for years as in smaller schools where each new bond issue raises the taxes not for one year but for many, and where there is the additional interest to be paid each time."

Called 'Foolhardy'

From a financial standpoint, Egan said: "It would be absolutely foolhardy for Woodstock to join Onteora today. The present bonded indebtedness of that district is over $2,000,000. They are faced with large additional capital costs to build a sewerage plant and recreation field. If we joined the district we would have to assume all the bonded indebtedness of that district which is now outstanding." For confirmation he quoted the law in Section 1808 of the Education Law which states that "said annexed district shall be responsible for the payment of its share of all the indebtedness of the central school district existing at the time of its annexation and thereafter." He noted that "while the first sentence of the above section of the law makes it mandatory for a school district which joins a centralized district to assume all the then oustanding indebtedness of a central district (as well as any incurred thereafter), it is to be distinctly noted, from the last sentence of the law, that the central district is not bound to assume any part of the debt of a district which is annexed to it."

Returning to the original planning of the Onteora centralization Mrs. Hubbell asked if Woodstock was to have had a new elementary school for grade kindergarten through six, to be located in the Woodstock district, or would all our little children have had to travel by bus to the central school? In answer, she said that "$140,000 had been planned for in the budget in 1947 for a school, kindergarten through sixth grade to be built in Woodstock . . . and in 1947 costs per cubic foot were considerably lower than when Woodstock carried out its plan in 1950 so the school would have been a good one and met the needs of our school population at that . . . and would have provision for gym, cafeteria and auditorium. Later we could have had that building added to and paid for by the entire district."

Traces Background

Concerning the proposed school in Woodstock under the centralized plan Egan reported: "With the support of the State Department of Education, as well as of a Joint Legislative Committee, known as the Rapp-Coudart Committee, District Supt. Reginald Bennett and a group, most of whom lived in the Towns of Shandaken and Olive, but a few of whom resided in parts of the Town of Woodstock westerly on Common School District 2, advocated the formation of a gigantic central school district to be known as the Onteora Central School District to comprise all that territory in the Towns of Woodstock, Olive and Shandaken and part of the Town of Lexington, Greene county. The site of the proposed school was fixed at Boiceville in the Town of Olive. Originally, the plan contemplated the transportation of all school children, of whatever age or grade, to and from the central school, regardless of its distance from their place of residence. An immediate adverse reaction to this particular phase of the plan from Woodstockers persuaded the citizen-sponsors of it that they had to offer some special 'sop' to Woodstock in an attempt to overcome this resistance. This citizen group, who were admittedly acting entirely unofficially, promised that if Woodstock would go along with the plan, they (the citizen group) would use their best efforts to induce the majority of the voters of the district and the Board of Education thereof, after the district was formed, to vote an appropriation sufficient to build a school in Woodstock to accommodate the first six grades. Concededly, the citizen sponsors had no authority to bind the district to give any guarantee that such a school would ever be built.

Best Efforts Promised

"All they could promise was to use their best efforts to see that it was done. If their 'best efforts' failed, Woodstock would simply be 'out of luck'. Once it became a part of the central district the die was cast, because there was no method by which it could thereafter withdraw. In view of the frequent reluctance of voters to appropriate money for their own communities, it was difficult to place much confidence in the assurance that voters, outside of Woodstock, would be willing to bond their own property for the benefit of Woodstock. At all events, even if the promise was fully kept, the most that Woodstock District 2 could ever hope to get in the way of a local community school was a building to house the first six grades. Its local school facilities, for all time to come, would be 'frozen' at that level."

These are only a few of the points enlarged upon in the two reports.

Selected to Attend Empire Girl's State

Woodstock, April 19 — Woodstock Unit 1026, American Legion Auxiliary, was notified last week of the selection of Roberta Kullmann, of this village, as a candidate for Empire Girls State. Miss Kullmann is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kullmann, also of this village. Theron L. Culver, principal of Kingston High School, made the selection, conforming with the qualifications and eligibility as recommended by Girls State.

The Girls State program is designed to train junior high school girls in Americanism and citizenship through actual performance of duties as a citizen. The delegates while attending Girls State also participate in other aspects of community life, freedom of worship, and through their activities carry the responsibilities they must assume as citizens.

As a part of the program they elect their own government officers and gain experience in getting along with others by the actual running of their government.

Each girl selected must be a junior in high school and in the upper half of her class scholastically. She must be outstanding in leadership, character and cooperativeness and be physically fit. Culver chose Miss Kullmann with these qualifications in mind. Her outstanding activities include membership in the Student Council and Spanish Club.

Miss Kullmann will attend Girls State at Skidmore College, Saratoga Springs, from June 25 through July 3. Miss Barbara Hastie, also of this village, was selected as alternate by Culver.

Ryan Reports on Indochina

(Depending upon the turn of events at Geneva next week, Indochina may be barely outside the grasp of international communism. That was reported by William L. Ryan yesterday in the first of a series of articles. Today Ryan discusses the strength of the Vietminh military forces which spearhead the Communist campaign. Ryan toured Indochina this month, then returned to Singapore to write his findings free of censorship.)

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

Singapore, April 20 (AP)—A cluster of Tonkinese peasants watched stolidly as our jeep drove by. Their faces were inscrutable under their big, round, pointed straw hats.

"These people," said a French officer, gesturing, "maybe they are Vietminh. Maybe they are not. One never knows.

"Who are the Vietminh? Where are they? Who knows? They are everywhere."

Guard Is Strong

That is why, in the Tonkin Delta area of North Indochina, everything that might possibly be damaged by sabotage is heavily guarded by barbed wire and watched by armed guards. It is the barbed wire that reminds you in Hanoi that there is a war going on.

The city seems peaceful enough. But the peaceful look is deceptive. The French admit that inside Hanio, capital of Tonkin, there are at least two armed battalions and perhaps more of Vietminh in hiding, ready to rise when and if the signal is given.

A French sergeant warned me not to venture abroad at night in the bicycle rickshaws—there's no such thing as a taxi in Hanoi. The rickshaw boy might be a Viet. The French call the rebels "The Viets."

Nominally Under French

The French nominally control all the delta area, an expanse of swampy ricefields and dense forests surrounding 5,400 villages and harboring seven million persons. But Gen. Rene Cogny, French commander in North Indochina, an outstanding and colorful officer, says the Vietminh in this area has 30 battalions of regular troops 15 "regional" battalions, 100 "district" companies and about 50,000 guerrillas.

In Hanio and the villages, these troops would rise from the straw-thatched huts, out of the fields, even out of the city's sewers if the signal were given to attack. For the time being they are lying low.

Road Cut Regularly

The troops constantly harass the French and Vietnamese in the Delta. Striking under cover of darkness, the Vietminh regularly each night cut the road between Hanoi and Haipong, the port from which comes the U. S. supplies so vital to the defenders of Viet Nam. Just as regularly in the daylight, French engineers restore the road.

The Vietminh persistently carry out sabotage, stab attacks and terror forays to strike fear into the hearts of any Tonkinese sympathizing with the French. They raid, kill and plunder, they impress men into their army and labor forces. They take over the rule villages—they hold more than 2,000 villages in the delta and terrorize at least another 2,000.

Frequently the rumble of artillery and the chatter of machine-guns can be heard by night in Hanoi. That means another of the endless stab attacks is underway.

Might Mean Uprising

If the gallant defenders in the fortress complex at Dien Bien Phu, 180 miles northwest of Hanoi, should be defeated it might mean a signal for a rising throughout the Delta. If the Vietminh should suffer such severe losses at Dien Bien Phu as to make it no longer worth the effort—in effect a military defeat—rebel forces in the delta also might rise, not only for the military objective involved but for purposes of revenge. Thus, in any case, it is not a comfortable situation for the French and Vietnamese.

The Vietminh has forces scattered all through Viet Nam, though almost none in the neighboring associated states of Laos and Cambodia. Saigon, a comfortable modern city which you'd hardly guess from a glance is the nerve center of a nation at war, often experiences stab "attente" attacks on its outskirts, particularly in the heavily Chinese area of Cholon.

Is Simple Foray

An "attente" attack is simply a foray to show the Vietminh are still around. The Vietminh pulled one such attack only recently. It was at a Saigon area training camp for Vietnamese officers—a camp guarded by barbed wire and strongpoints. The Vietminh struck suddenly in the dark, accomplished a lot of shooting and little else, then vanished as suddenly as they appeared.

No Chi Minh's barefoot hordes infiltrate French-held territory at will. They float in and out in the guise of peasants, arms concealed under Brown tunics. They have allies who will hide them and feed them—allies who are not Communists but just people who hate the French, hate the foreigner and want him to go.

The Vietminh uses terror, too, to accomplish infiltration whenever it is necessary. Tales filter back of people convicted as "collaborationists" and summarily executed in villages. Ho has a long arm and peasants who might be against him know it.

Diciplined by Terror

Ho's draftees from regular down to guerrilla are disciplined by stern terror. Recalcitrants face at best service in the labor corps of coolies on the jungle supply line. At worst, they face execution. A villager who does not respond properly to the words "Muong Minh" — "Long Live Minh"—is suspect.

Ho's military leaders have made soldiers out a horde of skinny, unshod, underfed peasants. The Tonkinese are clever people and learn quickly.

"The Viet is a damn good soldier," a tough French parachute troop noncom said we flew over Dien Bien Phu. "He can march harder and longer than any soldier in the world on less food."

"And he can shoot, too," added a mustached sergeant. "He is getting better all the time."

The Vietminh indeed seems to have learned quickly. In testimony is the steadily increasing accuracy of his anti-aircraft fire aimed at the planes reinforcing Dien Bien Phu.

How They Organize

Here is how Ho's forces are organized:

Total mobilization has been enforced in the areas controlled by the Vietminh. The army is organized in a sort of ladder. At the top are the regulars, the main striking arm. These are the best trained and best equipped. There are seven divisions of regulars in all, or about 110,000 men.

Local defense is relegated to the next rung of the ladder, the provincial or regional troops used both in Communist-held and non-communist areas. These also are regulars, but they are not so well trained and equipped. They are stationed in their respective areas as a corps of defense. They provide help in offensive actions when the regulars reach their areas and are invaluable because they know their country well. The regional troops also form a pool from which the Vietminh make up losses among the regulars.

Consist of Irregulars

Next down the ladder, district companies consist largely of irregulars. They have charge of the corps of boys, women and old men impressed into labor battalions. This group is kept at full strength by constant recruitment from the villages. It also forms a pool for regional troops.

A never-ending process of conscription, training and shifting keeps the Vietminh ranks from being depleted by heavy losses inflicted in battle.

Some French authorities say the Vietminh has reached the maximum number it can recruit in this way. Indeed, Dien Bien Phu losses have hurt Ho's forces, requiring him to throw in green troops in a desperate gamble. But competent American military observers—and some franker Frenchmen, too—are inclined to believe the Vietminh will continue making up losses in the usual pattern, though the process might be somewhat slowed.

But the Vietminh are having other troubles. They have a problem of supply. In the northern delta area, Vietminh troops live off the land and the people as much as possible but they are hard pressed to bring up materiel and ammunition.

Heavy weapons and supplies for the Dien Bien Phu assault have been coming by trucks—Molotov trucks shipped down from Russia through China. Several hundred trucks have been in the supply line along the dusty mountain roads. Other supplies streamed in on the backs of heavily laden coolies over miles of mountain and jungle trails. But soon the rains will be coming—the steady pelting monsoon rains of southeast Asia. Already it has been raining some in the northwest. In a few weeks the rains will become torrents and will cut roads much better than air attack could.

(Tomorrow—Dien Bien Phu.)

Bandit Snatches $700

Bloomfield, N. J., April 20 (AP)—A bandit held up a finance company employe last night as he was about to make a night deposit, and fled with $700. Bartholomew Lisanti, of 104-31 48th avenue, Corona, Queens, N. Y., told police he was ready to put the money in the night deposit box of the National Newark and Essex Banking Co. when a man said to him from behind: "Keep moving and don't turn around. Give me the bag. Don't turn around." Lisanti, who works for the Crown Finance Co. here, said the man poked him in the back with what might have been a gun. The bandit, he said, snatched the bag and fled around a corner.

Brancato Says FHA Abuse Not General

Federal Housing Administration operations currently under investigation by four different Washington groups represent less than one-tenth of one per cent of FHA activities, Dominick Brancato, president of DUSO Home Builders Association of Newburgh, said today.

He charged that political leaders were making "political hay" out of alleged irregularities which for the most part occurred several years ago during the post-war housing emergency and that it would be "a major tragedy for the American people and the administration's number one political mistake if headline hunting was substituted for passage of the housing bill which would help millions of people towards home ownership and better housing conditions."

He said builders everywhere were incensed at the "circus-like atomosphere in Washington" under which attacks on an infinitesimal portion of FHA's broad activities were producing headlines and that it would be a blow to the local economy if the Senate shelved pending housing legislation.

25 Flights Slated

First successful trade union was organized at Philadelphia in 1792 by the shoemakers.

HOT TIP for SPRING CLEANERS

Don't Let Them Get Away!

Catch your men folks before they duck! Make them visit the attic, really go to work on the cellar and garage! Tell them to get rid of all that old junk—the tinder dry papers, the half empty paint cans, the oily rags—all the deadly, flammable trash they'll never use again.

Have them check the furnace, fireplace and chimney flues. Finally, remind them of Sparky the dog's slogan—

Ryan Reports on Indochina

(Depending upon the turn of events at Geneva next week, Indochina may be barely outside the grasp of international communism. That was reported by William L. Ryan yesterday in the first of a series of articles. Today Ryan discusses the strength of the Vietminh military forces which spearhead the Communist campaign. Ryan toured Indochina this month, then returned to Singapore to write his findings free of censorship.)

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

Singapore, April 20 (AP)—A cluster of Tonkinese peasants watched stolidly as our jeep drove by. Their faces were inscrutable under their big, round, pointed straw hats.

"These people," said a French officer, gesturing, "maybe they are Vietminh. Maybe they are not. One never knows.

Guard Is Strong

That is why, in the Tonkin Delta area of North Indochina, everything that might possibly be damaged by sabotage is heavily guarded by barbed wire and watched by armed guards. It is the barbed wire that reminds you in Hanoi that there is a war going on.

The city seems peaceful enough. But the peaceful look is deceptive. The French admit that inside Hanio, capital of Tonkin, there are at least two armed battalions and perhaps more of Vietminh in hiding, ready to rise when and if the signal is given.

A French sergeant warned me not to venture abroad at night in the bicycle rickshaws—there's no such thing as a taxi in Hanoi. The rickshaw boy might be a Viet. The French call the rebels "The Viets."

Nominally Under French

The French nominally control all the delta area, an expanse of swampy ricefields and dense forests surrounding 5,400 villages and harboring seven million persons. But Gen. Rene Cogny, French commander in North Indochina, an outstanding and colorful officer, says the Vietminh in this area has 30 battalions of regular troops 15 "regional" battalions, 100 "district" companies and about 50,000 guerrillas.

In Hanio and the villages, these troops would rise from the straw-thatched huts, out of the fields, even out of the city's sewers if the signal were given to attack. For the time being they are lying low.

Road Cut Regularly

The troops constantly harass the French and Vietnamese in the Delta. Striking under cover of darkness, the Vietminh regularly each night cut the road between Hanoi and Haipong, the port from which comes the U. S. supplies so vital to the defenders of Viet Nam. Just as regularly in the daylight, French engineers restore the road.

The Vietminh persistently carry out sabotage, stab attacks and terror forays to strike fear into the hearts of any Tonkinese sympathizing with the French. They raid, kill and plunder, they impress men into their army and labor forces. They take over the rule villages—they hold more than 2,000 villages in the delta and terrorize at least another 2,000.

Frequently the rumble of artillery and the chatter of machine-guns can be heard by night in Hanoi. That means another of the endless stab attacks is underway.

Might Mean Uprising

If the gallant defenders in the fortress complex at Dien Bien Phu, 180 miles northwest of Hanoi, should be defeated it might mean a signal for a rising throughout the Delta. If the Vietminh should suffer such severe losses at Dien Bien Phu as to make it no longer worth the effort—in effect a military defeat—rebel forces in the delta also might rise, not only for the military objective involved but for purposes of revenge. Thus, in any case, it is not a comfortable situation for the French and Vietnamese.

The Vietminh has forces scattered all through Viet Nam, though almost none in the neighboring associated states of Laos and Cambodia. Saigon, a comfortable modern city which you'd hardly guess from a glance is the nerve center of a nation at war, often experiences stab "attente" attacks on its outskirts, particuly in the heavily Chinese area of Cholon.

Is Simple Foray

An "attente" attack is simply a foray to show the Vietminh are still around. The Vietminh pulled one such attack only recently. It was at a Saigon area training camp for Vietnamese officers—a camp guarded by barbed wire and strongpoints. The Vietminh struck suddenly in the dark, accomplished a lot of shooting and little else, then vanished as suddenly as they appeared.

No Chi Minh's barefoot hordes infiltrate French-held territory at will. They float in and out in the guise of peasants, arms concealed under Brown tunics. They have allies who will hide them and feed them—allies who are not Communists but just people who hate the French, hate the foreigner and want him to go.

The Vietminh uses terror, too, to accomplish infiltration whenever it is necessary. Tales filter back of people convicted as "collaborationists" and summarily executed in villages. Ho has a long arm and peasants who might be against him know it.

Diciplined by Terror

Ho's draftees from regular down to guerrilla are disciplined by stern terror. Recalcitrants face at best service in the labor corps of coolies on the jungle supply line. At worst, they face execution. A villager who does not respond properly to the words "Muong Minh" — "Long Live Minh"—is suspect.

Ho's military leaders have made soldiers out a horde of skinny, unshod, underfed peasants. The Tonkinese are clever people and learn quickly.

"The Viet is a damn good soldier," a tough French parachute troop noncom said we flew over Dien Bien Phu. "He can march harder and longer than any soldier in the world on less food."

"And he can shoot, too," added a mustached sergeant. "He is getting better all the time."

The Vietminh indeed seems to have learned quickly. In testimony is the steadily increasing accuracy of his anti-aircraft fire aimed at the planes reinforcing Dien Bien Phu.

How They Organize

Here is how Ho's forces are organized:

Total mobilization has been enforced in the areas controlled by the Vietminh. The army is organized in a sort of ladder. At the top are the regulars, the main striking arm. These are the best trained and best equipped. There are seven divisions of regulars in all, or about 110,000 men.

Local defense is relegated to the next rung of the ladder, the provincial or regional troops used both in Communist-held and non-communist areas. These also are regulars, but they are not so well trained and equipped. They are stationed in their respective areas as a corps of defense. They provide help in offensive actions when the regulars reach their areas and are invaluable because they know their country well. The regional troops also form a pool from which the Vietminh make up losses among the regulars.

Consist of Irregulars

Next down the ladder, district companies consist largely of irregulars. They have charge of the corps of boys, women and old men impressed into labor battalions. This group is kept at full strength by constant recruitment from the villages. It also forms a pool for regional troops.

A never-ending process of conscription, training and shifting keeps the Vietminh ranks from being depleted by heavy losses inflicted in battle.

Some French authorities say the Vietminh has reached the maximum number it can recruit in this way. Indeed, Dien Bien Phu losses have hurt Ho's forces, requiring him to throw in green troops in a desperate gamble. But competent American military observers—and some franker Frenchmen, too—are inclined to believe the Vietminh will continue making up losses in the usual pattern, though the process might be somewhat slowed.

But the Vietminh are having other troubles. They have a problem of supply. In the northern delta area, Vietminh troops live off the land and the people as much as possible but they are hard pressed to bring up materiel and ammunition.

Heavy weapons and supplies for the Dien Bien Phu assault have been coming by trucks—Molotov trucks shipped down from Russia through China. Several hundred trucks have been in the supply line along the dusty mountain roads. Other supplies streamed in on the backs of heavily laden coolies over miles of mountain and jungle trails. But soon the rains will be coming—the steady pelting monsoon rains of southeast Asia. Already it has been raining some in the northwest. In a few weeks the rains will become torrents and will cut roads much better than air attack could.

(Tomorrow—Dien Bien Phu.)

Bandit Snatches $700

Bloomfield, N. J., April 20 (AP)—A bandit held up a finance company employe last night as he was about to make a night deposit, and fled with $700. Bartholomew Lisanti, of 104-31 48th avenue, Corona, Queens, N. Y., told police he was ready to put the money in the night deposit box of the National Newark and Essex Banking Co. when a man said to him from behind: "Keep moving and don't turn around. Give me the bag. Don't turn around." Lisanti, who works for the Crown Finance Co. here, said the man poked him in the back with what might have been a gun. The bandit, he said, snatched the bag and fled around a corner.

Brancato Says FHA Abuse Not General

Federal Housing Administration operations currently under investigation by four different Washington groups represent less than one-tenth of one per cent of FHA activities, Dominick Brancato, president of DUSO Home Builders Association of Newburgh, said today.

He charged that political leaders were making "political hay" out of alleged irregularities which for the most part occurred several years ago during the post-war housing emergency and that it would be "a major tragedy for the American people and the administration's number one political mistake if headline hunting was substituted for passage of the housing bill which would help millions of people towards home ownership and better housing conditions."

He said builders everywhere were incensed at the "circus-like atomosphere in Washington" under which attacks on an infinitesimal portion of FHA's broad activities were producing headlines and that it would be a blow to the local economy if the Senate shelved pending housing legislation.

NEW PALTZ NEWS

Roberge Is Named Summer Director

New Paltz, April 19—The recreation committee held a meeting April 14 to choose a new director for the summer program. Those interviewed were Lawrence Johnson, Francis Connolly, Robert Breary and Joseph Roberge.

Roberge, science teacher at the high school, was selected. He has had experience in similar summer programs and has developed basic ideas for the success of such a program.

Among activities suggested to the committee for the program were swimming, archery, tennis, softball, Little League practices, croquet, football, badminton, arts and crafts, sandboxes, block dances and special events.

Members of the committee attending were Frank Bugar, George Ackert, Lee Keator, Mrs. Raymond Morris and Merri Coons. The next meeting will be held Wednesday, April 21.

Mrs. Pyle Elected League President

New Paltz, April 19 — The League of Women Voters held its annual meeting at the Methodist Church recently. The guest speakers were Frank Elliott, town supervisor, Dr. Robert Reid, mayor of the village, and Paul Kurtz, a member of the school board.

Officers elected for the coming year are Mrs. Robert Pyle, president, to fill out the unexpired term of Mrs. Edward C. Jacobs; Mrs. Jerome Hurd, vice-president; Mrs. Stephen Stark, treasurer; Mrs. Arthur Jorgensen and Mrs. Richard Redtern, board members; Mrs. John Jacobson, chairman of the nominating committee; Mrs. Walter Rost and Mrs. Ralph Buchanan, members of the nominating committee.

League Is Praised

During the meeting President Jacobs read part of an editorial from the issue of the April 9 New York Times praising the League of Women Voters for their active part in New York state's acceptance of permanent personal registration.

Mrs. Buchanan, local project chairman, introduced the speakers who were asked to talk about their boards' work of the year or plans for the coming year. Mr. Elliott told of the town board's work and where the tax dollar goes. The county is erecting an infirmary to house patients who are now in overcrowded nursing homes which will cost between $275,000 and $300,000. The cost to the residents of the town will be approximately sixty cents per thousand over a five year period.

To Re-route Highway

Elliott, a member of the highway committee, said that as a result of the recent accident in Kerhonkson, the state highway will be re-routed to the left to avoid the danger at the foot of the hill on 44-55.

The town's share for foster home care for children amounts to $9,990; for hospitalization, $1,000; $14,000 for highway repairs outside the village limits on which no one in the village pays taxes. Residents of the village do pay taxes toward bridges and machinery funds.

Kurtz spoke about the proposed school building and with the use of a chart showed the estimated increase in enrollment during the next few years. He said the new building would cost not more than $1,000,000, plus the interest on that amount.

Dr. Reid spoke about the polio vaccine which will be administered soon throughout the nation. Dr. Reid had planned to speak about the village budget or the proposed sewage disposal plant but decided the vaccine is of uppermost importance at the present time.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mrs. Harold Tannenbaum presented copies of the League's recent publication, Know Your State: A Handbook for Citizens of New York, to the three speakers.

Dr. Sachs Resumes Dental Practice

New Paltz, April 19—Dr. Jeremiah Sachs will resume today the dental practice of the late Dr. Samuel Zimet, in the office at 11 North Chestnut street. Dr. Sachs was born and reared in Brooklyn. He attended the New York public schools except for two years that he resided in Scotland as a youngster.

As a member of the U. S. Army he attended the University of Missouri and then served two and a half years with the 668th Field Artillery Battalion in the Pacific Theatre.

After his discharge from the service he entered Long Island University from which he received the BA degree. He then attended New York University College of Dentistry. He engaged in the practice of dentistry in New York prior to coming to New Paltz.

Firemen Kept Busy

New Paltz, April 19—Firemen are still busy answering calls resulting from spring cleanup. April 10 they were called to North Putt Corners road at 9:30 to put out a grass fire. That same day at 2:15 they were called to the William Hassell property for a woods fire.

The firemen also had two calls April 13, the first at 3:30 p. m. to the New Paltz dump, the second at 7 p. m. to the former Peter Boland property on Huguenot street.

When they answered a call April 14 at 4 p. m., they found a fire in the parked car of Jacob Robinson on Church street. Considerable damage was done to upholstery and cushions.

Contest Sponsored To Re-name Vandal

New Paltz, April 19—The editors of the New Paltz State Teachers College weekly newspaper are sponsoring a contest to find a new name for the paper. The present name, The Vandal, was chosen to commemorate a highly respected administrator, Lawrence H. van den Berg, who was principal of the New Paltz Normal School from 1923 to 1942 and president of the college from 1942 to his death in 1943. The name was chosen as a tribute to Dr. Van, as he was affectionately called.

Since the term vandal is always connected with one who destroys and comes as a surprise to new members of the college or faculty, it is now felt desirable to change it.

The judges who will decide upon the prize-winning name are Elaine Cross, '54 editor of the Vandal; Robert Detwyler, senior class president; Annette Rosenfeld, junior class president; Dr. J. H. Jacobson, college faculty; Mrs. Robert Reid, Jr., New Paltz alumni class of '45.

The winner will be announced May 7 and will receive a cash award and a bid to the Student Council Prom to be held May 8.

Royalty Climbs Stairs

Kandy, Ceylon, April 20 (AP)—Britain's Queen Elizabeth II and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, took off their shoes last night to climb the steep temple steps for a glimpse of Buddah's tooth, Ceylon's most prized religious relic. Tradition calls for removing the shoes in Buddhist temples. After seeing the famed relic, in the Temple of the Tooth, the royal couple took places on a octagonal dais to watch a glittering royal perahera, the festive traditional parade in which the Sinhalese chiefs of the past pledged allegiance to other British monarchs. The Queen and her party, on a world tour of British Commonwealth lands, sail tomorrow aboard the royal liner Gothic for Aden.

Two Are Arrested

New York, April 20 (AP)—Two youths were arrested on stolen car charges early today after a futile attempt to outdistance a police radio car several blocks east of Bronx Park. Police identified the two as George Longinette, 17, of 1385 Nelson avenue, and Raymond Casanova, 17, of 2126 Vyse avenue, both of the Bronx. They were seized after a four-block chase along Allerton and Bronxwood avenues. It ended when the stolen auto, owned by Arnold Segal, of 1375 Nelson avenue, crashed into a parked car. After questioning, the suspects, who suffered slight injuries, were charged with grand larceny.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

As time goes on and we get further away from pioneer days and covered wagons we find the most wonderful things are manufactured or discovered for us by sheer accident. It seems it takes a certain magic moment, a certain condition and a certain person who is well versed in that particular subject to discover something new. For instance, Robert Augustus Chesebrough, in 1859, a poor Brooklyn chemist, made one of the most important discoveries which has made life easier for many of us. The item he discovered is for instance used to simulate teardrops by movie starts. Artists use it to preserve paint brushes and long-distance swimmers use it to protect their bodies from cold waters. Magicians dab it on playing cards to effect tricks. Major league ballplayers rub it into their gloves to make the leather more pliable. Blind folk use it to keep their fingers soft to help them read Braille, so wrote Mort Weisinger in November Coronet.

Perhaps in qour own home you use it to remove white spots caused by a wet glass on furniture. It is also said it will make lipstick stains vanish. Some autodrivers use it in the winter on the car windshield to prevent frosting. Peary, the famous explorer, took it on his Arctic trips, and it didn't even freeze at 40 degrees below zero. Although it is used for many medicinal purposes like for burns, cuts, etc., it is not a modern wonder drug. It can be found on the shelves of general stores in the deep country and of course in drug stores. It is sold all over the world. Young Chesebrough back in 1859 happened to want to try his luck in Titusville, Pa., heart of the then oil boom. There he was introduced to "rod-wax" by a complaining oil field worker, who had to scrape and wipe off the rod-wax from the oil pumping equipment. According to the oil man "rod-wax" was the biggest nuisance in the oil fields. It seems it was a paraffin-like oil residue which had to be scraped off regularly or the shafts would not function property. Yet the oil man gave way to one bit of information in his complaining: "Still," he sighed, "the Almighty put everything here for a good purpose . . . even 'rod-wax.' The boys curse about it fouling the pumps, but if they accidentally burn or cut themselves, they come running for the stuff to rub on themselves. And it works like a charm."

The illustrated article goes into detail how the young chemist began to work on this rod-wax until he produced the famous white, translucent jelly, we all today know as Vaseline or white petroleum jelly. Perhaps in time his wagon came through Kingston for it is said that he put up thousands of one-ounce sample bottles and set out for upper New York giving them out to country farms. Later he took in New Jersey and Connecticut by having a number of horse and buggy salesmen. In 1870 he obtained the trade-mark Vaseline. It began to be used for various purposes even for mixing with oil burned in holy lamps, to eliminate choking smoke fumes. The sale went up to more than a jar a minute.

Chesebrough was not disturbed when he heard that natives in India buttered their bread with his jelly for it is said he ate a teaspoonful every day of his life and he managed to live successfully to the age of 96. He died in 1933. He personally considered Vaseline a cure-all for everything from asthma to ulcers. Today his Vaseline is sold to more than 100 countries of the world, 69,000,000 jars leave their factories every year.

Aims for Film Stardom

New York, April 19 (AP)—Simone Silva, British bit player who upset the decorum of the Cannes Film Festival with some brash posing, proclaimed today she's "out to beat" Jane Russell and Marilyn Monroe as a Hollywood actress. "They have been there long enough and now I would like to reign," the 24-year-old said as she arrived at Idlewild Airport from London aboard a Trans World Airlines plane. Later in the day she was to leave for Los Angeles where she has a film contract. Divorced two months ago after a seven-year marriage to a British textile mill owner, Miss Silva said she is going to concentrate on a film career, wants to play "vamp roles with a lot of sex and fire because I think I can do that type."

SHOKAN NEWS

Shokan, April 19—Reuben Freeland of the Middletown area was a caller in the hub of the reservoir country Friday. In addition to his duties as an auctioneer, he is an antique scout (finds and tips off to dealers and collectors the location of purchasable items) and also pursues the hobby of acquiring those scarce "vocational" shaving mugs.

Huge mail and New York Central Railroad trailer trucks now help to make up the ever increasing flow of heavy traffic over the Onteora Trail, main stem of the local twin villages.

Members of the Ashokan WSCS at their April meeting elected officers as follows: President Mrs. Charles Sickler, Vice-President and Treasurer Mrs. Martin Gulnack and Secretary Mrs. Anthony Macaluso.

Word has reached here of the illness at her Flushing, L. I. home of Mrs. A. J. Didier, the former Lillian Longyear of Shokan.

Mrs. Edward Adsit has opened an antiques shop in her home adjoining the O. S. Baptist Church grounds. Mrs. Adsit, who before marriage was Bertha Beesmer of Olive City, plans to specialize in consignment sales.

Dr. Henry Diepher, his wife and two daughters called here Wednesday. They reside near Paterson, N. J., and maintain a summer place at Phoenicia. Dr. Diepher, a dentist, has been obliged to take a long rest following an attack of illness early in the winter.

NEW PALTZ NEWS

Roberge Is Named Summer Director

New Paltz, April 19—The recreation committee held a meeting April 14 to choose a new director for the summer program. Those interviewed were Lawrence Johnson, Francis Connolly, Robert Breary and Joseph Roberge.

Roberge, science teacher at the high school, was selected. He has had experience in similar summer programs and has developed basic ideas for the success of such a program.

Among activities suggested to the committee for the program were swimming, archery, tennis, softball, Little League practices, croquet, football, badminton, arts and crafts, sandboxes, block dances and special events.

Members of the committee attending were Frank Bugar, George Ackert, Lee Keator, Mrs. Raymond Morris and Merri Coons. The next meeting will be held Wednesday, April 21.

Mrs. Pyle Elected League President

New Paltz, April 19 — The League of Women Voters held its annual meeting at the Methodist Church recently. The guest speakers were Frank Elliott, town supervisor, Dr. Robert Reid, mayor of the village, and Paul Kurtz, a member of the school board.

Officers elected for the coming year are Mrs. Robert Pyle, president, to fill out the unexpired term of Mrs. Edward C. Jacobs; Mrs. Jerome Hurd, vice-president; Mrs. Stephen Stark, treasurer; Mrs. Arthur Jorgensen and Mrs. Richard Redtern, board members; Mrs. John Jacobson, chairman of the nominating committee; Mrs. Walter Rost and Mrs. Ralph Buchanan, members of the nominating committee.

League Is Praised

During the meeting President Jacobs read part of an editorial from the issue of the April 9 New York Times praising the League of Women Voters for their active part in New York state's acceptance of permanent personal registration.

Mrs. Buchanan, local project chairman, introduced the speakers who were asked to talk about their boards' work of the year or plans for the coming year. Mr. Elliott told of the town board's work and where the tax dollar goes. The county is erecting an infirmary to house patients who are now in overcrowded nursing homes which will cost between $275,000 and $300,000. The cost to the residents of the town will be approximately sixty cents per thousand over a five year period.

To Re-route Highway

Elliott, a member of the highway committee, said that as a result of the recent accident in Kerhonkson, the state highway will be re-routed to the left to avoid the danger at the foot of the hill on 44-55.

The town's share for foster home care for children amounts to $9,990; for hospitalization, $1,000; $14,000 for highway repairs outside the village limits on which no one in the village pays taxes. Residents of the village do pay taxes toward bridges and machinery funds.

Kurtz spoke about the proposed school building and with the use of a chart showed the estimated increase in enrollment during the next few years. He said the new building would cost not more than $1,000,000, plus the interest on that amount.

Dr. Reid spoke about the polio vaccine which will be administered soon throughout the nation. Dr. Reid had planned to speak about the village budget or the proposed sewage disposal plant but decided the vaccine is of uppermost importance at the present time.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mrs. Harold Tannenbaum presented copies of the League's recent publication, Know Your State: A Handbook for Citizens of New York, to the three speakers.

Dr. Sachs Resumes Dental Practice

New Paltz, April 19—Dr. Jeremiah Sachs will resume today the dental practice of the late Dr. Samuel Zimet, in the office at 11 North Chestnut street. Dr. Sachs was born and reared in Brooklyn. He attended the New York public schools except for two years that he resided in Scotland as a youngster.

As a member of the U. S. Army he attended the University of Missouri and then served two and a half years with the 668th Field Artillery Battalion in the Pacific Theatre.

After his discharge from the service he entered Long Island University from which he received the BA degree. He then attended New York University College of Dentistry. He engaged in the practice of dentistry in New York prior to coming to New Paltz.

Firemen Kept Busy

New Paltz, April 19—Firemen are still busy answering calls resulting from spring cleanup. April 10 they were called to North Putt Corners road at 9:30 to put out a grass fire. That same day at 2:15 they were called to the William Hassell property for a woods fire.

The firemen also had two calls April 13, the first at 3:30 p. m. to the New Paltz dump, the second at 7 p. m. to the former Peter Boland property on Huguenot street.

When they answered a call April 14 at 4 p. m., they found a fire in the parked car of Jacob Robinson on Church street. Considerable damage was done to upholstery and cushions.

Contest Sponsored To Re-name Vandal

New Paltz, April 19—The editors of the New Paltz State Teachers College weekly newspaper are sponsoring a contest to find a new name for the paper. The present name, The Vandal, was chosen to commemorate a highly respected administrator, Lawrence H. van den Berg, who was principal of the New Paltz Normal School from 1923 to 1942 and president of the college from 1942 to his death in 1943. The name was chosen as a tribute to Dr. Van, as he was affectionately called.

Since the term vandal is always connected with one who destroys and comes as a surprise to new members of the college or faculty, it is now felt desirable to change it.

The judges who will decide upon the prize-winning name are Elaine Cross, '54 editor of the Vandal; Robert Detwyler, senior class president; Annette Rosenfeld, junior class president; Dr. J. H. Jacobson, college faculty; Mrs. Robert Reid, Jr., New Paltz alumni class of '45.

The winner will be announced May 7 and will receive a cash award and a bid to the Student Council Prom to be held May 8.

Royalty Climbs Stairs

Kandy, Ceylon, April 20 (AP)—Britain's Queen Elizabeth II and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, took off their shoes last night to climb the steep temple steps for a glimpse of Buddah's tooth, Ceylon's most prized religious relic. Tradition calls for removing the shoes in Buddhist temples. After seeing the famed relic, in the Temple of the Tooth, the royal couple took places on a octagonal dais to watch a glittering royal perahera, the festive traditional parade in which the Sinhalese chiefs of the past pledged allegiance to other British monarchs. The Queen and her party, on a world tour of British Commonwealth lands, sail tomorrow aboard the royal liner Gothic for Aden.

Two Are Arrested

New York, April 20 (AP)—Two youths were arrested on stolen car charges early today after a futile attempt to outdistance a police radio car several blocks east of Bronx Park. Police identified the two as George Longinette, 17, of 1385 Nelson avenue, and Raymond Casanova, 17, of 2126 Vyse avenue, both of the Bronx. They were seized after a four-block chase along Allerton and Bronxwood avenues. It ended when the stolen auto, owned by Arnold Segal, of 1375 Nelson avenue, crashed into a parked car. After questioning, the suspects, who suffered slight injuries, were charged with grand larceny.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

As time goes on and we get further away from pioneer days and covered wagons we find the most wonderful things are manufactured or discovered for us by sheer accident. It seems it takes a certain magic moment, a certain condition and a certain person who is well versed in that particular subject to discover something new. For instance, Robert Augustus Chesebrough, in 1859, a poor Brooklyn chemist, made one of the most important discoveries which has made life easier for many of us. The item he discovered is for instance used to simulate teardrops by movie starts. Artists use it to preserve paint brushes and long-distance swimmers use it to protect their bodies from cold waters. Magicians dab it on playing cards to effect tricks. Major league ballplayers rub it into their gloves to make the leather more pliable. Blind folk use it to keep their fingers soft to help them read Braille, so wrote Mort Weisinger in November Coronet.

Perhaps in qour own home you use it to remove white spots caused by a wet glass on furniture. It is also said it will make lipstick stains vanish. Some autodrivers use it in the winter on the car windshield to prevent frosting. Peary, the famous explorer, took it on his Arctic trips, and it didn't even freeze at 40 degrees below zero. Although it is used for many medicinal purposes like for burns, cuts, etc., it is not a modern wonder drug. It can be found on the shelves of general stores in the deep country and of course in drug stores. It is sold all over the world. Young Chesebrough back in 1859 happened to want to try his luck in Titusville, Pa., heart of the then oil boom. There he was introduced to "rod-wax" by a complaining oil field worker, who had to scrape and wipe off the rod-wax from the oil pumping equipment. According to the oil man "rod-wax" was the biggest nuisance in the oil fields. It seems it was a paraffin-like oil residue which had to be scraped off regularly or the shafts would not function property. Yet the oil man gave way to one bit of information in his complaining: "Still," he sighed, "the Almighty put everything here for a good purpose . . . even 'rod-wax.' The boys curse about it fouling the pumps, but if they accidentally burn or cut themselves, they come running for the stuff to rub on themselves. And it works like a charm."

The illustrated article goes into detail how the young chemist began to work on this rod-wax until he produced the famous white, translucent jelly, we all today know as Vaseline or white petroleum jelly. Perhaps in time his wagon came through Kingston for it is said that he put up thousands of one-ounce sample bottles and set out for upper New York giving them out to country farms. Later he took in New Jersey and Connecticut by having a number of horse and buggy salesmen. In 1870 he obtained the trade-mark Vaseline. It began to be used for various purposes even for mixing with oil burned in holy lamps, to eliminate choking smoke fumes. The sale went up to more than a jar a minute.

Chesebrough was not disturbed when he heard that natives in India buttered their bread with his jelly for it is said he ate a teaspoonful every day of his life and he managed to live successfully to the age of 96. He died in 1933. He personally considered Vaseline a cure-all for everything from asthma to ulcers. Today his Vaseline is sold to more than 100 countries of the world, 69,000,000 jars leave their factories every year.

Aims for Film Stardom

New York, April 19 (AP)—Simone Silva, British bit player who upset the decorum of the Cannes Film Festival with some brash posing, proclaimed today she's "out to beat" Jane Russell and Marilyn Monroe as a Hollywood actress. "They have been there long enough and now I would like to reign," the 24-year-old said as she arrived at Idlewild Airport from London aboard a Trans World Airlines plane. Later in the day she was to leave for Los Angeles where she has a film contract. Divorced two months ago after a seven-year marriage to a British textile mill owner, Miss Silva said she is going to concentrate on a film career, wants to play "vamp roles with a lot of sex and fire because I think I can do that type."

SHOKAN NEWS

Shokan, April 19—Reuben Freeland of the Middletown area was a caller in the hub of the reservoir country Friday. In addition to his duties as an auctioneer, he is an antique scout (finds and tips off to dealers and collectors the location of purchasable items) and also pursues the hobby of acquiring those scarce "vocational" shaving mugs.

Huge mail and New York Central Railroad trailer trucks now help to make up the ever increasing flow of heavy traffic over the Onteora Trail, main stem of the local twin villages.

Members of the Ashokan WSCS at their April meeting elected officers as follows: President Mrs. Charles Sickler, Vice-President and Treasurer Mrs. Martin Gulnack and Secretary Mrs. Anthony Macaluso.

Word has reached here of the illness at her Flushing, L. I. home of Mrs. A. J. Didier, the former Lillian Longyear of Shokan.

Mrs. Edward Adsit has opened an antiques shop in her home adjoining the O. S. Baptist Church grounds. Mrs. Adsit, who before marriage was Bertha Beesmer of Olive City, plans to specialize in consignment sales.

Dr. Henry Diepher, his wife and two daughters called here Wednesday. They reside near Paterson, N. J., and maintain a summer place at Phoenicia. Dr. Diepher, a dentist, has been obliged to take a long rest following an attack of illness early in the winter.

Ray Osterhoudt of the operating force down at the reservoir headworks, is one of the successful trout fishermen thus far in the season. He did well at pulling in both brown and brook trout during the opening weekend.

Old Timer, noting well filled school buses going back and forth between several communities and the Onteora fount of learning, opines that one of the best things about the central school idea is the opportunity it affords youngsters to get acquainted with other kids from here and there in several townships.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gang and two children of Franklin Square are spending a few days with Mrs. Gang's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Farrell, in the village center. John, a pressroom foreman on the New York Journal American, has acquired a pedigreed young Boxer dog which the family brought along on the trip.

Calling in Shokan Friday were Mrs. Clifford Donohue of Kingston and two young friends, Mary and Barbara Chmura, KHS alumnus and senior class member, respectively. Mrs. Donohue, the former Ruth Hover of Olive Bridge and Krumville, is a sister of Mrs. Dorville Boice and Lorin Hover. She is related to the Ennist and Turner families of pre-waterworks days. Mary Chmura, now a student at the Cortland Teachers College, is interested in learning of local folklore, both song and story, which might be useful material for her forthcoming final school thesis along that line.

Uncertain on Russia As Talks Are Prepared

United Nation, April 20 (AP)—Spurred by the menace of the hydrogen bomb, the western powers prepared today for new disarmament talks without knowing whether the Soviet Union will take part.

The 12-nation UN Disarmament Commission set up a subcommittee yesterday to start the talks, in private, here Friday.

It adopted, 9 to 1, a British proposal naming Britain, Canada, France, the Soviet Union and the United States to the sub-group.

It rejected, 10 to 1, a Soviet bid to add Communist China, Czechoslovakia and India.

Only Soviet Delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky voted against the British resolution and for his own amendment. Lebanon and Nationalist China abstained on the former, Lebanon on the latter.

Vishinsky had warned beforehand that adoption of the British plan, which he called one-sided, would "create difficulties for the Soviet Union as regards its participation in the work of the subcommittee."

Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. of the United States called this "a thinly veiled threat to walk out."

The subcommittee is the outgrowth of a general assembly resolution of last Nov. 28 and of a Berlin agreement of the big four foreign ministers, announced Feb. 18, to "hold an exchange of views" on disarmament. It is to report back to the full commission by July 15.

1,235 Acres Burn

Trenton, N. J., April 20 (AP)—Twenty-five forest fires burned out 1,235 acres of woodland in various parts of the state yesterday. Most of the fires broke out in Atlantic county, where about 1,000 acres were charred. The blazes raced fiercely despite the fact that the woods had been soaked by rain over the weekend.

There isn't very much to the hand shown today, especially with all of the cards in sight. In actual play, however, this kind of hand can be troublesome. When the hand was played in a recent tournament, several experienced players came a cropper with it.

The bidding was simple enough, and the game in spades was reached at every table. As it happened, moreover, the queen of hearts was opened at each table.

Each declarer promptly won the first or second round of hearts with dummy's ace. Two rounds of trumps then disclosed the fact that East had started with three trumps. It was at this point that the sheep were separated from the goats.

A few thoughtless declarers drew East's last trump. They then tried the club's finesse, successfully enough, and found that they couldn't get out of dummy in order to repeat that finesse. They had to give up two hearts and two diamonds, thus losing the game contract.

The correct play is simplicity itself. Declarer must try the club finesse before drawing East's last trump. When the finesse succeeds, South can lead dummy's last trump in order to get back in his hand. Now he is in a position to repeat the club finesse and can discard a worthless red card on the ace of clubs.

The correct line of play will come as a shock, I am sure, to all the players whose first idea is to draw the outstanding trumps as quickly as possible. If you suffer from such a tendency yourself, look at the dummy carefully before you draw trumps.

Make sure that you have some way to get back and forth from one hand to the other in the proper development of your plans. If you have no such way, save the trumps for that purpose.

Channel 7 Plans Saturday Night TV Fights From Area Cities

Ray Arcel Says Kingston, Newburg Are on Schedule

Poughkeepsie Also Listed by Promoter

Kingston is being considered as an outlet for Channel 7's (ABC) Saturday Night Fights, Ray Arcel, New York promoter, said yesterday.

In a telephone conversation with the sports department, the promoter of the Saturday night series which hops all over the country for Channel 7 viewers said he hoped to send out shows from Kingston, Poughkeepsie and Newburgh.

Channel 7 recently presented Gerald Dreyer, the South African, out of Albany under the co-sponsorship of Arcel and Ted Bayly, but it was not a financial success.

Arcel said no local program is scheduled for the immediate future. He said a definite date would be contingent upon arrangements with the telephone company to get the live telecast on the coaxial cables.

Arcel said he eventually hoped to beam all of his weekly shows from within New York state.

"At the present time we have to bounce all over the country for the Saturday show but we'd like to settle down in New York state as much as possible. That's when cities like Kingston, Poughkeepsie and Newburgh would fit nicely into our plans."

In connection with the proposed outlet from the mid-Hudson area, it is interesting to note the important announcement of last week.

It has been reported that Channel 7, in addition to the regular Saturday night show, would take over the Monday night program at Eastern Parkway in Brooklyn. That show from the "House of Upsets" is currently being carried by Channel 5. The DuMont network would then shift to Thursday nights.

Johnny Ferraro's 212-13 figure for 90 games is another all-time standard. So is the 1238 they rolled this season.

SPORTS

By Charles J. Tiano
Sports Editor

That hardy perennial of bowling—the Hudson Valley League—observed its 17th anniversary Saturday night at the Capri in a resplendent setting of roast beef, champagne and Mayor Fred Stang's repertoire of rib-splitting jokes.

Actually it was 20 years since Addison Jones assembled a group of bowling pioneers at the Richburg and Howe alleys in Walden to spawn the top circuit of the area. There was no bowling in the war years because of gasoline restrictions, the league running from the 1934-35 season to 1942-43. Operations resumed in 1945-46.

Only Jones remains on the scene of the original group that included Brown Hunter and Tom Pines of the Middletown State Hospital, Larry Funnell and Bert Matthews of Middletown, Charlie Grassey of Port Jervis, Cecil Rhodes out of Newburgh.

IN THE PRE-WAR YEARS, the HVBL circuit was pretty much of a closed circuit between Middletown fabulous Hospital five of Brown Hunter, Emil Garbarino, Red Leeson, Tom Pines and Tom Sheldon, with Yank Livicorri joining the cast later. They won four titles in the seven years. Newburgh picked up two and the Walden powerhouse of George Scofield, Mike Brophy, Tom McDermott, John Geschwinder, John Flaacke and Dory Cryer accounted for the other.

Gil Samson, Fred Rice, George Robinson and others combined to bring Kingston its first pennant in 1945-46, rolling on alleys 1 and 2 at the Central Recs. This was a tough pair then, with the added hazard of the foul box hanging over the foul line to haunt visitors. Van Kleeck's didn't knock down any boxcar totals but always managed to beat the other guys. On one memorable occasion they whipped Walden with a 795 score.

Ad Jones picked up his first title in the 1946-47 season, giving Kingston two in a row with a squad that carried Bob Hanley, Johnny Schatzel, John Ferraro, Harold Broskie and your correspondent. Newburgh Shapiros (Wally Gerken and Co.) and the Middletown whizkids—Bennett Roofers—gained the gonfalon the next two years. The Roofers introduced bright newcomers like Arnie Koeppel, Wayne Scott and others.

Newburgh's Cy Diners reeled off the next three pennants—1949-50-51-52, only team ever to capture three flags in a row. One of the all-time great combinations it numbered Pat Tarsio, Nick Leoce, Tony Mack, Lou Visconti and Al Crisci. The team shot a 1200 game and held the record until Jones Dairy unloaded 1238 in February of this year.

The current Jones Dairy cast, with the exception of Dick Howard for Hank Kemmerer won it last year and the Poughkeepsie Cabs brought the pennant to the Bridge City for the first time this year.

The all-time records of the HVBL are strictly major league and all four were compiled on Kingston alleys. Does that have any significance? Perhaps, but the fact remains Johnny Ferraro and company hit for big totals no matter where they rolled locally, 5 and 6 and 7-8 at the Centrals and 7 and 8 at the Bowlodrome.

Here are the two all-time team records rolled on alleys 7 and 8 at the Bowlodrome:

TEAM HIGH SINGLE		TEAM HIGH SERIES
Larry Weishaupt	257	G. Flemings	212	215	214	641
Harold Broskie	247	H. Broskie	219	233	224	676
Charles Manfro	210	J. Schrowang	269	244	258	771
Dick Howard	235	H. Kemmerer	178	233	205	616
John Ferraro	289	J. Ferraro	225	206	279	710
	1238		1083	1131	1180	3414

Larry Weishaupt and Johnny Ferraro own all the other all-time records. Weishaupt rolled a "300" score on alleys 5 and 6 at the Central Recs on Jan. 30, 1949. Ferraro's 818 was rolled on March 28, 1953, at the Bowlodrome and Weishaupt completed a string of 18 consecutive "200" games from Feb. 6 to March 13 this season.

The three Dairy records are a 1012 team average; 11 consecutive 1000-games and four straight 3000 sets. Nick Leoce, the brilliant Nifty Nick of Newburgh, owns the other individual standard, ten straight 600 triples in the 1950-51 season.

Those are remarkable scores but then the HVBL is a most remarkable league.

Finnish Runner Karvonen Captures Boston Marathon

Boston, April 20 (AP)—Finnish marathoner Veikko Karvonen—a fellow with a long memory—relaxed happily today after squaring accounts with Britain's Jimmy Peters.

The 27-year-old mail clerk defeated Peters—holder of the unofficial world record for a 26 miles, 385 yards grind—by 800 yards yesterday while winning the 58th Boston A. A. marathon.

Only last October Karvonen finished second to the 35-year-old London optician's assistant as Peters set his world mark of 2:18:-34.5 right in the Finn's hometown of Turku.

Karvonven suffered a humiliating loss as he trailed Peters in that test by more than a mile.

That was the second major disappointment for Karvonen. Only last April, he pushed Japan's tiny Keizo Yamada to a Boston A. A. record of 2:18:51.

But Karvonen vowed he'd work harder than ever. He and teammate Erkki Puolakka, the current Finnish champion, spent more than a month training in Clifton, N. J., for yesterday's race from suburban Hopkinton to Boston's Back Bay.

Settles For First

This time Karvonen wouldn't settle for the runnerup spot. He wanted the victor's laurel wreath and that diamond and gold medal. He raced stride for stride with Peters through most of the race, then moved in front for good on the torturous stretch of "Heartbreak Hill"—some eight miles from home.

His winning time of 2:20:39 wasn't as swift as his 2:19:19 effort here in 1953, when the runners had a brisk tailwind. This year a lively head wind bothered them the last six miles. Peters' time was 2:22:40.

Finland — homeland of famed distance champion Paavo Nurmi —added lustre to its racing honors as Puolakka, a 28-year-old paper mill foreman, finished third in 2:24:25.

The chief hope for an American victory, 23-year-old collegian Johnny J. Kelley of New London, Conn., and Boston University, was seventh in 2:28:51. For the second straight year he was the first U. S. entry to finish. Last year he ran fifth.

Dancer Captures Daily Double

Yonkers, April 20 (AP)—Stanley Dancer, New Egypt, N. J., driver, won both ends of the daily double and Del MacTavish, a Canadian took the feature $3,000 Class A Hudson Pace with Bobby King to feature last night's harness racing at Yonkers Raceway before 26,-822.

Dancer brought home Waycrown in the first race pace and Bold Scott in the second race trot. The double payoff was $31.60.

MacTavish led from beginning to end with Bobby King, a 6-year-old owned by Arthur McConville of Ogdensburg, N. Y., in winning the feature. Harvey Pointer and Denny Pointer finished second and third respectively. The time for the mile was 2:06.1.

Lynn Wilson driver of Clever Counsel was unseated in the feature when his horse ran into Patty Vee who had broken stride and cut to the outside.

Decision Due Today On Patterson-Maxim

Brooklyn, April 20 (AP)—Matchmaker Teddy Brenner hopes for speedy action today in his bid to match former world champion Joey Maxim and Floyd Patterson, a red-hot light-heavyweight prospect.

Maxim and his manager Jack Kearns have been offered a guarantee of $10,000 and have promised to meet with Brenner today.

The bout would go on at the Eastern Parkway Arena either May 17 or 24, Brenner said.

Mid-Hudson Group Is Organized Here

A Mid-Hudson chapter of the New York State Baseball Umpires Association, organized in Kingston last night, named Tom Heneberry president and made plans for the 1954 season.

Jack Rivenberg of Saugerties was elected vice-president. Andy Murphy III, superintendent of recreation, was named secretary. John Gilligan, a coach at Kingston High, will serve as treasurer.

Heneberry, a former City League and Kingston Recreation ball player, has been in the ranks of the blue for the past several years.

The local chapter will have representation from Saugerties, New Paltz, Kingston and Kerhonkson.

Plans call for setting up the chapter along the lines of basketball and football officiating groups now operating in the district.

High school baseball is the big item on the chapter's agenda at the moment and representatives will meet officials and directors of various area leagues to help alleviate the acute umpire situation.

Exams To Be Held

An extensive written examination and field exam will be required of all applicants. A state test will be given each member annually to perpetuate the license.

At present the Mid-Hudson chapter's jurisdiction covers the land area from two miles north of Saugerties to the state line on both sides of the Hudson river.

The Mid-Hudson group was notified by the state association president that Poughkeepsie umpires had requested a chapter but were informed their area was already taken in by the Mid-Hudson chapter and they would have to join the Kingston group.

Dates for written examinations and field tests for prospective candidates will be announced by Andy Murphy in the near future.

Tag Team Aces Here Wednesday

The best known tag team in wrestling today will be featured in the main event Wednesday night at the municipal auditorium.

Wild Bill Melby and his partner, Jack Witzig, of Minneapolis, are scheduled in a best-of-three falls match against the house wrecking combine of Art Nielsen and Reggie Lisowski.

The Lisowski-Nielsen team is regarded as the roughest in the business. Two other bouts round out the program.

Providence, R. I.—Danny Giovanelli, 149, Brooklyn, stopped Billy Andy, 156, Providence, 5.

Poughkeepsie Also Listed by Promoter

Kingston is being considered as an outlet for Channel 7's (ABC) Saturday Night Fights, Ray Arcel, New York promoter, said yesterday.

In a telephone conversation with the sports department, the promoter of the Saturday night series which hops all over the country for Channel 7 viewers said he hoped to send out shows from Kingston, Poughkeepsie and Newburgh.

At the present time the only outlets for the Saturday night boxing shows are Albany, Syracuse and Buffalo.

Channel 7 recently presented Gerald Dreyer, the South African, out of Albany under the co-sponsorship of Arcel and Ted Bayly, but it was not a financial success.

Arcel said no local program is scheduled for the immediate future. He said a definite date would be contingent upon arrangements with the telephone company to get the live telecast on the coaxial cables.

Arcel said he eventually hoped to beam all of his weekly shows from within New York state.

"At the present time we have to bounce all over the country for the Saturday show but we'd like to settle down in New York state as much as possible. That's when cities like Kingston, Poughkeepsie and Newburgh would fit nicely into our plans."

In connection with the proposed outlet from the mid-Hudson area, it is interesting to note the important announcement of last week.

It has been reported that Channel 7, in addition to the regular Saturday night show, would take over the Monday night program at Eastern Parkway in Brooklyn. That show from the "House of Upsets" is currently being carried by Channel 5. The DuMont network would then shift to Thursday nights.

That hardy perennial of bowling—the Hudson Valley League—observed its 17th anniversary Saturday night at the Capri in a resplendent setting of roast beef, champagne and Mayor Fred Stang's repertoire of rib-splitting jokes.

Actually it was 20 years since Addison Jones assembled a group of bowling pioneers at the Richburg and Howe alleys in Walden to spawn the top circuit of the area. There was no bowling in the war years because of gasoline restrictions, the league running from the 1934-35 season to 1942-43. Operations resumed in 1945-46.

Only Jones remains on the scene of the original group that included Brown Hunter and Tom Pines of the Middletown State Hospital, Larry Funnell and Bert Matthews of Middletown, Charlie Grassey of Port Jervis, Cecil Rhodes out of Newburgh.

IN THE PRE-WAR YEARS, the HVBL circuit was pretty much of a closed circuit between Middletown fabulous Hospital five of Brown Hunter, Emil Garbarino, Red Leeson, Tom Pines and Tom Sheldon, with Yank Livicorri joining the cast later. They won four titles in the seven years. Newburgh picked up two and the Walden powerhouse of George Scofield, Mike Brophy, Tom McDermott, John Geschwinder, John Flaacke and Dory Cryer accounted for the other.

Gil Samson, Fred Rice, George Robinson and others combined to bring Kingston its first pennant in 1945-46, rolling on alleys 1 and 2 at the Central Recs. This was a tough pair then, with the added hazard of the foul box hanging over the foul line to haunt visitors. Van Kleeck's didn't knock down any boxcar totals but always managed to beat the other guys. On one memorable occasion they whipped Walden with a 795 score.

Ad Jones picked up his first title in the 1946-47 season, giving Kingston two in a row with a squad that carried Bob Hanley, Johnny Schatzel, John Ferraro, Harold Broskie and your correspondent. Newburgh Shapiros (Wally Gerken and Co.) and the Middletown whizkids—Bennett Roofers—gained the gonfalon the next two years. The Roofers introduced bright newcomers like Arnie Koeppel, Wayne Scott and others.

Newburgh's Cy Diners reeled off the next three pennants—1949-50-51-52, only team ever to capture three flags in a row. One of the all-time great combinations it numbered Pat Tarsio, Nick Leoce, Tony Mack, Lou Visconti and Al Crisci. The team shot a 1200 game and held the record until Jones Dairy unloaded 1238 in February of this year.

The current Jones Dairy cast, with the exception of Dick Howard for Hank Kemmerer won it last year and the Poughkeepsie Cabs brought the pennant to the Bridge City for the first time this year.

The all-time records of the HVBL are strictly major league and all four were compiled on Kingston alleys. Does that have any significance? Perhaps, but the fact remains Johnny Ferraro and company hit for big totals no matter where they rolled locally, 5 and 6 and 7-8 at the Centrals and 7 and 8 at the Bowlodrome.

Here are the two all-time team records rolled on alleys 7 and 8 at the Bowlodrome:

TEAM HIGH SINGLE		TEAM HIGH SERIES
Larry Weishaupt	257	G. Flemings	212	215	214	641
Harold Broskie	247	H. Broskie	219	233	224	676
Charles Manfro	210	J. Schrowang	269	244	258	771
Dick Howard	235	H. Kemmerer	178	233	205	616
John Ferraro	289	J. Ferraro	225	206	279	710
1238			1083	1131	1180	3414

Larry Weishaupt and Johnny Ferraro own all the other all-time records. Weishaupt rolled a "300" score on alleys 5 and 6 at the Central Recs on Jan. 30, 1949. Ferraro's 818 was rolled on March 28, 1953, at the Bowlodrome and Weishaupt completed a string of 18 consecutive "200" games from Feb. 6 to March 13 this season.

The three Dairy records are a 1012 team average; 11 consecutive 1000-games and four straight 3000 sets. Nick Leoce, the brilliant Nifty Nick of Newburgh, owns the other individual standard, ten straight 600 triples in the 1950-51 season.

Those are remarkable scores but then the HVBL is a most remarkable league.

Finnish Runner Karvonen Captures Boston Marathon

Boston, April 20 (AP)—Finnish marathoner Veikko Karvonen—a fellow with a long memory—relaxed happily today after squaring accounts with Britain's Jimmy Peters.

The 27-year-old mail clerk defeated Peters—holder of the unofficial world record for a 26 miles, 385 yards grind—by 800 yards yesterday while winning the 58th Boston A. A. marathon.

Only last October Karvonen finished second to the 35-year-old London optician's assistant as Peters set his world mark of 2:18:-34.5 right in the Finn's hometown of Turku.

Karvonven suffered a humiliating loss as he trailed Peters in that test by more than a mile.

That was the second major disappointment for Karvonen. Only last April, he pushed Japan's tiny Keizo Yamada to a Boston A. A. record of 2:18:51.

But Karvonen vowed he'd work harder than ever. He and teammate Erkki Puolakka, the current Finnish champion, spent more than a month training in Clifton, N. J., for yesterday's race from suburban Hopkinton to Boston's Back Bay.

Settles For First

This time Karvonen wouldn't settle for the runnerup spot. He wanted the victor's laurel wreath and that diamond and gold medal. He raced stride for stride with Peters through most of the race, then moved in front for good on the torturous stretch of "Heartbreak Hill"—some eight miles from home.

His winning time of 2:20:39 wasn't as swift as his 2:19:19 effort here in 1953, when the runners had a brisk tailwind. This year a lively head wind bothered them the last six miles. Peters' time was 2:22:40.

More than 500,000 persons lined the course in 68-degree temperature.

Finland — homeland of famed distance champion Paavo Nurmi —added lustre to its racing honors as Puolakka, a 28-year-old paper mill foreman, finished third in 2:24:25.

The chief hope for an American victory, 23-year-old collegian Johnny J. Kelley of New London, Conn., and Boston University, was seventh in 2:28:51. For the second straight year he was the first U. S. entry to finish. Last year he ran fifth.

Dancer Captures Daily Double

Yonkers, April 20 (AP)—Stanley Dancer, New Egypt, N. J., driver, won both ends of the daily double and Del MacTavish, a Canadian took the feature $3,000 Class A Hudson Pace with Bobby King to feature last night's harness racing at Yonkers Raceway before 26,-822.

Dancer brought home Waycrown in the first race pace and Bold Scott in the second race trot. The double payoff was $31.60.

MacTavish led from beginning to end with Bobby King, a 6-year-old owned by Arthur McConville of Ogdensburg, N. Y., in winning the feature. Harvey Pointer and Denny Pointer finished second and third respectively. The time for the mile was 2:06.1.

Lynn Wilson driver of Clever Counsel was unseated in the feature when his horse ran into Patty Vee who had broken stride and cut to the outside.

Decision Due Today On Patterson-Maxim

Brooklyn, April 20 (AP)—Matchmaker Teddy Brenner hopes for speedy action today in his bid to match former world champion Joey Maxim and Floyd Patterson, a red-hot light-heavyweight prospect.

Maxim and his manager Jack Kearns have been offered a guarantee of $10,000 and have promised to meet with Brenner today.

The bout would go on at the Eastern Parkway Arena either May 17 or 24, Brenner said.

Mid-Hudson Group Is Organized Here

A Mid-Hudson chapter of the New York State Baseball Umpires Association, organized in Kingston last night, named Tom Heneberry president and made plans for the 1954 season.

Jack Rivenberg of Saugerties was elected vice-president. Andy Murphy III, superintendent of recreation, was named secretary. John Gilligan, a coach at Kingston High, will serve as treasurer.

Heneberry, a former City League and Kingston Recreation ball player, has been in the ranks of the blue for the past several years.

The local chapter will have representation from Saugerties, New Paltz, Kingston and Kerhonkson.

Plans call for setting up the chapter along the lines of basketball and football officiating groups now operating in the district.

High school baseball is the big item on the chapter's agenda at the moment and representatives will meet officials and directors of various area leagues to help alleviate the acute umpire situation.

Exams To Be Held

An extensive written examination and field exam will be required of all applicants. A state test will be given each member annually to perpetuate the license.

At present the Mid-Hudson chapter's jurisdiction covers the land area from two miles north of Saugerties to the state line on both sides of the Hudson river.

The Mid-Hudson group was notified by the state association president that Poughkeepsie umpires had requested a chapter but were informed their area was already taken in by the Mid-Hudson chapter and they would have to join the Kingston group.

Dates for written examinations and field tests for prospective candidates will be announced by Andy Murphy in the near future.

Tag Team Aces Here Wednesday

The best known tag team in wrestling today will be featured in the main event Wednesday night at the municipal auditorium.

Wild Bill Melby and his partner, Jack Witzig, of Minneapolis, are scheduled in a best-of-three falls match against the house wrecking combine of Art Nielsen and Reggie Lisowski.

The Lisowski-Nielsen team is regarded as the roughest in the business. Two other bouts round out the program.

Providence, R. I.—Danny Giovanelli, 149, Brooklyn, stopped Billy Andy, 156, Providence, 5.

Major Teams Bunched at Start But How Long Will This Last?

In case you haven't noticed, the major league pennant races are away to one of the closest starts in recent seasons.

No team has jumped off to a long winning streak. No team has fallen far behind. Today, after one week, only a game and a half separates the first and last in the American League; just two games divide top from bottom in the National.

This early in the year the races aren't too important. But a game won or lost in the first week counts just as much toward winning the pennant as one in the heat of the September flag fever.

Compared with the first week of the 1953 season the standings have undergone considerable juggling, particularly in the American League.

Detroit is leading the American by half a game over Washington. A year ago the Tigers were last, four games behind the old St. Louis Browns, and Washington was in seventh place.

Cincinnati, co-leader with Philadelphia in the National League, languished in seventh last year at the end of the first week while the Phils were tied for third.

Leaders All Beaten

Neither Brooklyn nor New York, top-heavy choices to repeat their 1953 triumphs, have been able to match their first week pace of last season. The Dodgers already were in first with a 4-1 mark—they are third this time with 3-2—and the Yankees were second at 4-2. They're 3-3 this year.

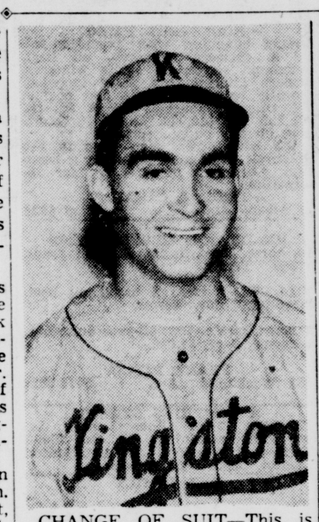

The leaders all lost yesterday. Detroit was toppled by Chicago 5-1. Cincinnati bowed to St. Louis 6-3 and the Phillies were defeated by Brooklyn 9-7.

In other action the Yankees split a Patriot's Day pair in Boston, losing 2-1 in the morning and winning 5-0 in the afternoon on a brilliant one-hitter by Jim McDonald. Washington shaded the Philadelphia Athletics 4-3 on Eddie Yost's ninth inning home run. Pittsburgh beat the New York Giants 7-5. Baltimore and Cleveland in the American League and Milwaukee and Chicago in the National weren't scheduled.

McDonald's performance against the Red Sox was the best of his career. He walked five but struck out four and the only safety he allowed was a second inning single by rookie Harry Agganis.

Mickey Mantle struck out four times in the morning contest batting lefthanded but he hit a home run righthanded, his first of the season, in the after-lunch encounter.

Yost got his home run, a 415-foot blast, as the leadoff batter in the last of the ninth at Washington. Rookie Art Ditmar was the victim. Morrie Martin joined Bobby Shantz on the A's sore arm list. He started but had to give up after five innings.

CHANGE OF SUIT—This is how Tom Heneberry looked in his playing days as a ball player. He made the shift to the other side complete last night with his election as president of the Mid-Hudson Umpires Baseball Association. (Freeman photo)

Robinson on Spree

Jack Harshman, the former first baseman who was the pitching sensation of the Southern Assn. last season, failed in his second start with the White Sox. But Harry Dorish slammed the door on the Tigers after taking over with the bases loaded and one out in the fourth inning.

Chicago collected 11 hits off loser Billy Hoeft and his successors, Dick Weik and Bob Miller.

Jackie Robinson was the hitting star in Brooklyn's triumph over the Phillies. He broke a 5-5 tie with a home run in the seventh inning and finished the night with a four-for-four performance. The Phils drove Don Newcombe to cover in the third inning when they took a 4-1 lead but the Dodgers' 18 hit attack was too much for the ineffective Philadelphia pitching.

Successive homers by Stan Musial and Ray Jablonski in the sixth inning helped Harvey Haddix win his first game for St. Louis. Haddix already has lost twice and he was lifted in the ninth inning last night when Cincinnati threatened. But Stu Miller and Al Brazel subdued the Reds.

Pittsburgh scored five runs with only one hit in the third inning against the Giants. Four walks, interference by catcher Ebba St. Claire, and a hit batter aided in the spree.

The "World's Championship" follows, with first prize worth a flat $50,000 — double the amount collected by winner Lew Worsham last year. In addition, Promoter May, president of Tam O'Shanter, will give the victor a contract for 50 exhibition matches at $1,000 each.

Major Teams Bunched at Start But How Long Will This Last?

In case you haven't noticed, the major league pennant races are away to one of the closest starts in recent seasons.

No team has jumped off to a long winning streak. No team has fallen far behind. Today, after one week, only a game and a half separates the first and last in the American League; just two games divide top from bottom in the National.

This early in the year the races aren't too important. But a game won or lost in the first week counts just as much toward winning the pennant as one in the heat of the September flag fever.

Compared with the first week of the 1953 season the standings have undergone considerable juggling, particularly in the American League.

Detroit is leading the American by half a game over Washington. A year ago the Tigers were last, four games behind the old St. Louis Browns, and Washington was in seventh place.

Cincinnati, co-leader with Philadelphia in the National League, languished in seventh last year at the end of the first week while the Phils were tied for third.

Leaders All Beaten

Neither Brooklyn nor New York, top-heavy choices to repeat their 1953 triumphs, have been able to match their first week pace of last season. The Dodgers already were in first with a 4-1 mark—they are third this time with 3-2—and the Yankees were second at 4-2. They're 3-3 this year.

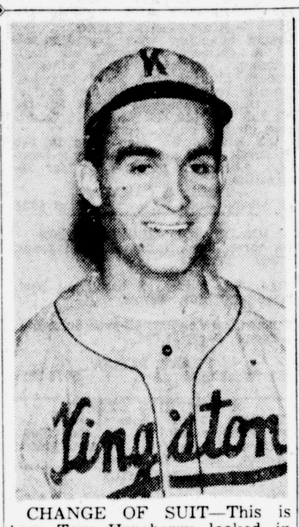

The leaders all lost yesterday. Detroit was toppled by Chicago 5-1. Cincinnati bowed to St. Louis 6-3 and the Phillies were defeated by Brooklyn 9-7.

In other action the Yankees split a Patriot's Day pair in Boston, losing 2-1 in the morning and winning 5-0 in the afternoon on a brilliant one-hitter by Jim McDonald. Washington shaded the Philadelphia Athletics 4-3 on Eddie Yost's ninth inning home run. Pittsburgh beat the New York Giants 7-5. Baltimore and Cleveland in the American League and Milwaukee and Chicago in the National weren't scheduled.

McDonald's performance against the Red Sox was the best of his career. He walked five but struck out four and the only safety he allowed was a second inning single by rookie Harry Agganis.

Mickey Mantle struck out four times in the morning contest batting lefthanded but he hit a home run righthanded, his first of the season, in the after-lunch encounter.

Yost got his home run, a 415-foot blast, as the leadoff batter in the last of the ninth at Washington. Rookie Art Ditmar was the victim. Morrie Martin joined Bobby Shantz on the A's sore arm list. He started but had to give up after five innings.

CHANGE OF SUIT—This is how Tom Heneberry looked in his playing days as a ball player. He made the shift to the other side complete last night with his election as president of the Mid-Hudson Umpires Baseball Association. (Freeman photo)

Robinson on Spree

Jack Harshman, the former first baseman who was the pitching sensation of the Southern Assn. last season, failed in his second start with the White Sox. But Harry Dorish slammed the door on the Tigers after taking over with the bases loaded and one out in the fourth inning.

Chicago collected 11 hits off loser Billy Hoeft and his successors, Dick Weik and Bob Miller.

Jackie Robinson was the hitting star in Brooklyn's triumph over the Phillies. He broke a 5-5 tie with a home run in the seventh inning and finished the night with a four-for-four performance. The Phils drove Don Newcombe to cover in the third inning when they took a 4-1 lead but the Dodgers' 18 hit attack was too much for the ineffective Philadelphia pitching.

Successive homers by Stan Musial and Ray Jablonski in the sixth inning helped Harvey Haddix win his first game for St. Louis. Haddix already has lost twice and he was lifted in the ninth inning last night when Cincinnati threatened. But Stu Miller and Al Brazel subdued the Reds.

Pittsburgh scored five runs with only one hit in the third inning against the Giants. Four walks, interference by catcher Ebba St. Claire, and a hit batter aided in the spree.

MATCHING BAIT CASTING LURES TO ROD'S ACTION

A HEAVY-ACTION ROD...

...NEEDS A 5/8-OUNCE LURE TO OVERCOME ITS STIFFNESS AND CREATE THE DESIRED BEND IN CASTING. A 3/8-OUNCE LURE WON'T BEND ROD ENOUGH (A) TO CAST EASILY SO YOU FORCE THE CAST. THIS IS TIRING AND RESULTS IN BACKLASHES.

THE LIGHT-ACTION ROD BENDS CORRECTLY WITH A 3/8-OUNCE LURE (B). A 5/8-OUNCE LURE PUTS TOO MUCH BEND IN THE ROD (C). ITS EFFECT SLOWS THE ACTION, CREATES BACKLASHES.

DIFFERENT RODS SHOULD BEND ALIKE IF EACH LURE'S WEIGHT VARIES TO SUIT EACH ROD.

Cadet Five Wins 56-51

Not until last night, after a winter long struggle, was George McElroy of the Y able to get two junior basketball squads together for a grudge game.

In what was described as positively cross-my-heart the last basketball game of the 1953-54 season, the Cadet League all stars defeated First Dutch, 56-51, in overtime.

Mike Perry's deuce with one second remaining tied the regulation contest at 45-45. Then in the three-minute overtime, Mel Williams fired four points, John Woods three and Richie Amato two.

For First Dutch, Les Comstock collected all four points.

Individual scoring leader was First Dutch's Dirk Oudemool with 18 points. Les Comstock rimmed 13 and Charles Bell 12.

WINS 2 to 1 IN AMAZING TASTE TEST!

Lester Veley, Albany—"The Utica Club taste test won me to this fine beer forever...It tastes so much better."

Salvatore Mastrobattisto, Syracuse—"I switched to Utica Club after making the U.C. taste test. It's always U.C. for me."

READ ABOUT THE MOST SENSATIONAL BEER TASTE TEST EVER CONDUCTED . . . PROVE TO YOURSELF THAT U.C. IS TASTIER, DRIER . . . THAT YOU'LL LIKE IT FAR BETTER.

In hundreds of homes, Utica Club won 2 to 1 for taste against the beers people had in their own refrigerators . . . beers people had thought were their favorites!

Test Utica Club yourself—against any beer! You'll agree that Utica Club Pilsener is the mellowest, smoothest, best-tasting beer you ever drank!

Here's why! Utica Club is brewed from the choicest grains, malt and hops—as stated right on the label.

Only Utica Club—and one other premium beer—gives you this assurance of quality.

And UC's costlier extra-long aging process gives you a beer that's a winner for taste, for dryness, for pure enjoyment! And it's less filling, too!

So make your own taste test today! Try UC—and see if you don't like it better than any beer you ever tried—bar none! See why UC is the "tastiest beer in town"!

Russians Reach Singapore on Way To Soviet Union

Singapore, April 20 (AP)—Three glum-faced Russians who lost out in a struggle with Australian police over Mrs. Vladimir Petrov arrived here by air today en route to the Soviet Union, amid strict security precautions.

The trio, including, F. U. Kislitsyn, second secretary of the Soviet Embassy in Canberra, refused to discuss Mrs. Petrov's last-minute switch to the free world.

The blonde wife of the Soviet diplomat who fled communism for asylum in Australia was taken off the plane early today by Australian officials in Darwin. Police took loaded pistols away from two of the Russians accompanying her.

Cried First Two Hours

Although the Russians refused to talk about events between Mrs. Petrov's boarding the airliner at Sydney and her decision at Darwin to seek asylum, other passengers on the plane said she cried the first two hours out of Sydney.

Dutch-born importer C. Janssens, en route from Melbourne to Holland, said Mrs. Petrov "definitely was no kidnapped" by the Australians at Darwin. "She was very sorry to be leaving Australia," he aded. The Russians accused Australian authorities of kidnapping her.

The strictest security precautions ever seen at Singapore were in force at the Kallang Airport as the plane landed.

At the Raffles Hotel, where the Russians will remain until tomorrow, airline clerks filled in the hotel register for them while the Russians were taken into the hotel through a side entrance.

Plain clothes police stood guard outside their rooms and patrolled the hotel grounds.

AustraliansRescue

month with stacks of Red espionage data from his post as third secretary and MVD (secret police) chief at the Soviet Embassy in Canberra.

The riotous episodes surrounding Mrs. Petrov's flight promised serious diplomatic repercussions between Australia and the Kremlin. Soviet Ambassador Nicolai Generalov immediately lodged a formal protest at the Australian Foreign Ministry, charging "armed assault against diplomatic couriers and detention of a Soviet official, to-wit: Mrs. Petrov."

Australia's Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies called an urgent cabinet meeting to discuss the possibility the Russians might retaliate against the small Australian Embassy staff in Moscow.

It was revealed at Canberra that Mrs. Petrov was a cipher clerk in the Soviet Embassy, handling the secret code messages to and from the Kremlin. If she decides to follow her husband in revealing what she knows about the inner workings of that embassy, she may be as important as he in helping to track down Soviet espionage in Australia.

A Royal Commission with increased legal powers already has been authorized to sift the mass of documents Petrov turned over. Menzies said that data revealed a large Soviet spy network in this country. Other sources said at least 30 Australians were implicated.

Menzies told reporters of the dramatic series of events leading up to Mrs. Petrov's decision to ask asylum in Australia and declared it could "be seen Australia behaved with scrupulous care and regard for international protocol."

The Russians at Darwin claimed the action against the couriers violated their diplomatic immunity. But legal experts pointed out Australian air travel laws forbid passengers to carry firearms aboard a plane. They said although a country cannot take punitive action against diplomats of another country, it can take measures to prevent law violations.

Once disarmed, the couriers were left alone. They and the embassy second secretary, F. V. Kislitsin, went on to Europe with the BOAC airliner.

The government announced it was throwing the same cloak of secrecy over Mrs. Petrov as it had over her husband, and there would be no interviews with newsmen. It was thought likely she would be flown back to rejoin her husband in Canberra sometime tonight.

Lights to Signal Donations Ready ForCancerTonight

A house-to-house canvass in every ward of the city beginning at 7 p. m. today will be conducted by workers in the current Cancer Drive Fund. Individuals who wish to contribute to this cause are requested by Hugh Elwyn, city chairman, to turn on their porch lights, as a signal to the volunteers from the Ulster County Chapter, American Cancer Society, to call at the house.

It was learned that this will be the final request for individual contributions in the current campaign, and will close the drive in the city. "We hope that all our workers will be kept busy tonight collecting needed funds for cancer," said Mrs. Harry Van Wagenen, executive director.

Employes of Channel Master Corp. of Ellenville sent a check today for $200 to aid the Cancer Drive Fund. A letter accompanying the check sent to Mrs. Van Wagenen stated ".... I am only acting as chairman for a group of about 40 men and women of the Channel Master Corporation who took it upon their own to donate their time and money to make this contribution possible. We sincerely hope that this check, in some small manner, will prove to be a help to this most worthy cause." The letter was signed for the employes group by Mrs. Helen A. Sutton.

"It is hoped that lights will go on all over the city at 7 p. m. today, showing that people want to give generously to this final drive in the city during National Cancer Drive Fund Month," said Herman G. Rafalowsky, publicity chairman.

Wepman Pleads

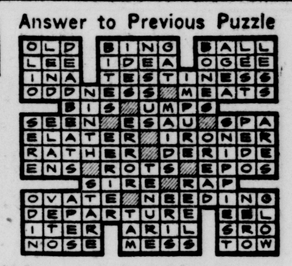

until mid-December, when Wepman told a girl friend the Fradens had been slain and she went to the authorities.

Police said Fraden went to the apartment of his parents and placed poison in champagne cocktails he poured for them. Wepman reportedly waited outside the apartment while the couple was slain. Police said Fraden was motivated chiefly by hopes of obtaining an inheritance from his parents and that Wepman wanted to share in it.

Bronx County Judge Eugene G. Schulz set May 19 for sentencing Wepman.

Byrd Cites Excess

headed by Sen. Capehart (R.-Ind.), also is looking into the alleged scandals and the two groups were holding separate hearings simutaneously.

Before Capehart Groups

Cole was before the Capehart committee. Under questioning, he testified that he asked the White House to obtain the resignation of Federal Housing Administrator Guy T. O. Hollyday. He said he did so because of what he termed FHA's laxity in investigating and punishing alleged frauds and abuses.

Hollyday was ousted April 12. He told the committee yesterday his resignation was requested by Sherman Adams, top aid to President Eisenhower, and that he was given no explanation. He said Cole had never spoken to him about it.

Cole said at the time of Hollyday's resignation that Hollyday had failed to act against abuses. Disputing that, Hollyday said that as FHA commissioner he had put in new regulations to stop "unscrupulous promoters."

Denies Suggestion

Cole denied a suggestion from the Mortgage Bankers Association of America that Hollyday's resignation was forced because Hollyday resisted a proposed shift of authority from FHA to Cole's supervisory agency, the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

He testified also that he had discussed with Hollyday, in July, 1953, the case of an unnamed FHA official who reportedly was gambling large sums.

"I suggested that since this person had important decisions to make as to whether one company or another should get an FHA (mortgage financing) commitment, there should be an investigation made," Cole told the committee.

"Did this person work for Hollyday?" inquired Capehart.

"Yes," said Cole.

"Why didn't Mr. Hollyday bring disciplinary charges against this gentleman?"

"I do not know."

Cole promised the senators he would recommend ways to close legal loopholes in the government's housing program within a week.

He promised to "tighten up the organization, the programs and the procedures" of the many-sided housing program.

He said he wanted a "complete and absolute goldfish bowl" inquiry into allegations that some builders have made huge "windfall" profits with government-insured housing loans.

Paulus Trains Reds

Bonn, Germany, April 20 (AP)—Western intelligence officials say the Russians have assigned former Field Marshal Friedrich Paulus, their vanquished enemy at Stalingrad, a key role in expanding the Communist East Germany Army. The 63-year-old ex-prisoner has taken over the training of the officer corps and officer cadets for this Soviet-equipped force, these officials said today. He has set up headquarters near Leipzig with a staff including a number of his old Wehrmacht companions, they added. Paulus commanded the German Sixth Army and was captured in the Stalingrad debacle in 1943. He returned to Germany last Oct. 26 after 10 years captivity in the Moscow area.

Russians Reach Singapore on Way To Soviet Union

Singapore, April 20 (AP)—Three glum-faced Russians who lost out in a struggle with Australian police over Mrs. Vladimir Petrov arrived here by air today en route to the Soviet Union, amid strict security precautions.

The trio, including F. U. Kislitsyn, second secretary of the Soviet Embassy in Canberra, refused to discuss Mrs. Petrov's last-minute switch to the free world.

The blonde wife of the Soviet diplomat who fled communism for asylum in Australia was taken off the plane early today by Australian officials in Darwin. Police took loaded pistols away from two of the Russians accompanying her.

Cried First Two Hours

Although the Russians refused to talk about events between Mrs. Petrov's boarding the airliner at Sydney and her decision at Darwin to seek asylum, other passengers on the plane said she cried the first two hours out of Sydney.

Dutch-born importer C. Janssens, en route from Melbourne to Holland, said Mrs. Petrov "definitely was no kidnapped" by the Australians at Darwin. "She was very sorry to be leaving Australia," he aded. The Russians accused Australian authorities of kidnapping her.

The strictest security precautions ever seen at Singapore were in force at the Kallang Airport as the plane landed.

At the Raffles Hotel, where the Russians will remain until tomorrow, airline clerks filled in the hotel register for them while the Russians were taken into the hotel through a side entrance.

Plain clothes police stood guard outside their rooms and patrolled the hotel grounds.

month with stacks of Red espionage data from his post as third secretary and MVD (secret police) chief at the Soviet Embassy in Canberra.

The riotous episodes surrounding Mrs. Petrov's flight promised serious diplomatic repercussions between Australia and the Kremlin. Soviet Ambassador Nicolai Generalov immediately lodged a formal protest at the Australian Foreign Ministry, charging "armed assault against diplomatic couriers and detention of a Soviet official, to-wit: Mrs. Petrov."

Australia's Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies called an urgent cabinet meeting to discuss the possibility the Russians might retaliate against the small Australian Embassy staff in Moscow.

It was revealed at Canberra that Mrs. Petrov was a cipher clerk in the Soviet Embassy, handling the secret code messages to and from the Kremlin. If she decides to follow her husband in revealing what she knows about the inner workings of that embassy, she may be as important as he in helping to track down Soviet espionage in Australia.

A Royal Commission with increased legal powers already has been authorized to sift the mass of documents Petrov turned over. Menzies said that data revealed a large Soviet spy network in this country. Other sources said at least 30 Australians were implicated.

Menzies told reporters of the dramatic series of events leading up to Mrs. Petrov's decision to ask asylum in Australia and declared it could "be seen Australia behaved with scrupulous care and regard for international protocol."

The Russians at Darwin claimed the action against the couriers violated their diplomatic immunity. But legal experts pointed out Australian air travel laws forbid passengers to carry firearms aboard a plane. They said although a country cannot take punitive action against diplomats of another country, it can take measures to prevent law violations.

Once disarmed, the couriers were left alone. They and the embassy second secretary, F. V. Kislitsin, went on to Europe with the BOAC airliner.

The government announced it was throwing the same cloak of secrecy over Mrs. Petrov as it had over her husband, and there would be no interviews with newsmen. It was thought likely she would be flown back to rejoin her husband in Canberra sometime tonight.

Lights to Signal Donations Ready ForCancerTonight

A house-to-house canvass in every ward of the city beginning at 7 p. m. today will be conducted by workers in the current Cancer Drive Fund. Individuals who wish to contribute to this cause are requested by Hugh Elwyn, city chairman, to turn on their porch lights, as a signal to the volunteers from the Ulster County Chapter, American Cancer Society, to call at the house.

It was learned that this will be the final request for individual contributions in the current campaign, and will close the drive in the city. "We hope that all our workers will be kept busy tonight collecting needed funds for cancer," said Mrs. Harry Van Wagenen, executive director.

Employes of Channel Master Corp. of Ellenville sent a check today for $200 to aid the Cancer Drive Fund. A letter accompanying the check sent to Mrs. Van Wagenen stated "....I am only acting as chairman for a group of about 40 men and women of the Channel Master Corporation who took it upon their own to donate their time and money to make this contribution possible. We sincerely hope that this check, in some small manner, will prove to be a help to this most worthy cause." The letter was signed for the employes group by Mrs. Helen A. Sutton.

"It is hoped that lights will go on all over the city at 7 p. m. today, showing that people want to give generously to this final drive in the city during National Cancer Drive Fund Month," said Herman G. Rafalowsky, publicity chairman.

Wepman Pleads

until mid-December, when Wepman told a girl friend the Fradens had been slain and she went to the authorities.

Police said Fraden went to the apartment of his parents and placed poison in champagne cocktails he poured for them. Wepman reportedly waited outside the apartment while the couple was slain. Police said Fraden was motivated chiefly by hopes of obtaining an inheritance from his parents and that Wepman wanted to share in it.

Bronx County Judge Eugene G. Schulz set May 19 for sentencing Wepman.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Byrd Cites Excess

headed by Sen. Capehart (R.-Ind.), also is looking into the alleged scandals and the two groups were holding separate hearings simutaneously.

Before Capehart Groups

Cole was before the Capehart committee. Under questioning, he testified that he asked the White House to obtain the resignation of Federal Housing Administrator Guy T. O. Hollyday. He said he did so because of what he termed FHA's laxity in investigating and punishing alleged frauds and abuses.

Hollyday was ousted April 12. He told the committee yesterday his resignation was requested by Sherman Adams, top aid to President Eisenhower, and that he was given no explanation. He said Cole had never spoken to him about it.

Cole said at the time of Hollyday's resignation that Hollyday had failed to act against abuses. Disputing that, Hollyday said that as FHA commissioner he had put in new regulations to stop" unscrupulous promoters."

Denies Suggestion

Cole denied a suggestion from the Mortgage Bankers Association of America that Hollyday's resignation was forced because Hollyday resisted a proposed shift of authority from FHA to Cole's supervisory agency, the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

He testified also that he had discussed with Hollyday, in July, 1953, the case of an unnamed FHA official who reportedly was gambling large sums.

"I suggested that since this person had important decisions to make as to whether one company or another should get an FHA (mortgage financing) commitment, there should be an investigation made," Cole told the committee.

"Did this person work for Hollyday?" inquired Capehart.

"Yes," said Cole.

"Why didn't Mr. Hollyday bring disciplinary charges against this gentleman?"

"I do not know."

Cole promised the senators he would recommend ways to close legal loopholes in the government's housing program within a week.

He promised to "tighten up the organization, the programs and the procedures" of the many-sided housing program.

He said he wanted a "complete and absolute goldfish bowl" inquiry into allegations that some builders have made huge "windfall" profits with government-insured housing loans.

Paulus Trains Reds

Bonn, Germany, April 20 (AP)—Western intelligence officials say the Russians have assigned former Field Marshal Friedrich Paulus, their vanquished enemy at Stalingrad, a key role in expanding the Communist East Germany Army. The 63-year-old ex-prisoner has taken over the training of the officer corps and officer cadets for this Soviet-equipped force, these officials said today. He has set up headquarters near Leipzig with a staff including a number of his old Wehrmacht companions, they added. Paulus commanded the German Sixth Army and was captured in the Stalingrad debacle in 1943. He returned to Germany last Oct. 26 after 10 years captivity in the Moscow area.

Two Kingston Men Hurt in Accident

Two Kingston men escaped with slight injuries early Sunday morning from their overturned car as it lay in the East Branch of the Delaware river at Margaretville. The 1952 Buick, driven by Daniel Chester Amorosi, 30, of 108 Broadway, missed a sharp right turn on Route 28, slid along a dirt road for 150 feet, then plunged 30 feet into the rain-swollen water. Amorosi and his passenger, John William Carter of 45 Jarrold street, were forced to kick out the windshield in order to escape. They were treated at the Margaretville hospital for finger abrasions and body bruises. Amorosi was later given a summons on a charge of driving at a dangerous speed. It is returnable Saturday before Peace Justice Donald Fenton in Margaretville. Trooper Fred Baessler of the Margaretville state police sub-station made the investigation.

Wilson Sees U. S.

Regarding the likelihood of atomic attack, Wilson said:

Militarily Strong

"We are militarily strong enough to deter aggression, and the Russians are not going to start a war by dropping a bomb on us when they know there is going to be immediate and massive retaliation."

Questioned about the percentage of attacking Russian planes that could get through to American targets, Wilson said it would depend on what time of day an attack was started, how much warning could be obtained and "whether they did it now or three years from now."

Wilson said "close to 10 per cent of Department of Defense expenditures for military functions in the fiscal year 1955 will be for continental defense," which he said was "narrowly defined" as units having primary missions to defend the continental United States.

The secretary said other units likely would play a defensive role in the event of an attack.

Local Dealer Honored

A Gold Seal of Commendation has been awarded by the Automobile Club of New York to Old Capital Motors, Inc., for its participation in the high school driver education program during the school year 1953-54. In a letter to George N. Shivery, local dealer, it was pointed out that the commendation was for "outstanding community service" in providing a dual control training car for use by students enrolled in the driver education course of New Paltz High School.

The danger that the Moslems might conquer Europe was continually present from 622 to 1638 when they were turned back from the siege of Vienna.

Ice Box Hazards May Bring Fine

Albany, April 20 (AP)—After July 1, anyone abandoning an icebox or refrigerator that might prove a death trap for children at play will be subject to a fine.

Gov. Dewey signed legislation yesterday to require the removal of the door, lid, hinges or fasteners of discarded freezers.

Thomas Tries to Win Back Seat in Congress

Newark, N. J., April 20 (AP)—Former Rep. J. Parnell Thomas, jailed during his last House term, today tries to win Republican nomination to his old seat in Congress on a pro-McCarthy platform.

Thomas' bid for a political comeback in the wake of a prison term for pocketing Congressional payroll kickbacks in 1949 features an otherwise tame New Jersey primary election.

The 59-year-old politician-publisher is running against incumbent Rep. William B. Widnall (R-NJ) in the rural Seventh District.

Widnall has the support of party organizations.

The Thomas-Widnall race and statewide referenda on bingo and raffles have generated the lion's share of pre-primary fireworks.

Polls were opened at 7 a. m. and will close at 8 p. m.

Only two other incumbents besides Widnall—Reps. Alfred D. Sieminski, Democrat, and Frank C. Osmers, Republican—face primary opposition, and that from figures new to the national scene. In all, there are eight party contests for the state's 14 House posts.

Major party nominees for the Senate are unopposed.

Thomas, who said he "never once" met Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy and would only know him from his pictures, has campaigned on a pledge of "1,000 per cent" support of the Wisconsin Republican and his Communist-hunting methods.

After he was paroled and pardoned, he turned to the publishing business and now operates three weekly newspapers in and around his hometown of Allendale.

Thomas, the candidate, has waged an active campaign.

Roosevelt Plans

holdings and income available to Mrs. Roosevelt and their three children. In her separate maintenance suit she said he agreed in a 1945 letter to a similar 50-50 arrangement if they did not reconcile, but in the current litigation Roosevelt has claimed that letter was not a binding contract.

Another letter, from Mrs. Roosevelt's lawyer to her husband's attorney, was quoted as saying: "Your client has no immediate plans for remarriage, as we understand, and neither does ours."

Democratic National Chairman Stephen Mitchell suggested that Roosevelt drop his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the 26th California district in view of his marital troubles.

His wife, whom he married in 1941 after she had been his nurse during his stay in a hospital, charged in her suit for separate maintenance that he had confessed in a 1945 letter infidelities with nine women. Roosevelt denied any such infidelities and said he had admitted them in a letter to her only to spare his father, then President, the worrry of her threatened divorce suit.

Roosevelt's notice to amend his suit into a divorce action said he took the course "in view of the irreconciliable differences which have arisen between the defendant and the plaintff."

He said his offer of a compromise property settlement was made in the interest of the three young children of the couple and their general welfare and to prevent publicity unfavorable to both parties and a public airing of their past domestic difficulties.

The children are James, Jr., 8; Michael, 7, and Anna Eleanor, 6.

Won't Serve Time On Gun Charge

James Albert, 23, of 13 Washington Place, Newburgh, entered a plea of guilty to illegal possession of a firearm, Monday afternoon in County Court. Louis G. Bruhn appeared for the defendant. Judge Cashin suspended imposition of sentence.

Albert, who is employed as a truck driver, was arrested by Ellenville State Police at Newburgh on complaint of Austin Lyons of Granite, who charged Albert had come to his place on March 4 and demanded money. Lyons told the police the man had been at his place once before but he did not know his name. He charged the man had insisted Lyons had money hidden in the place. When Lyons denied this it was alleged Albert had seized Lyons by the throat. Later he left the place and returned with a .32 calibre gun and threatened Lyons, according to the complaint. However he left when informed Lyons had no money. Albert was arrested a few days later and held for grand jury action.

The assault, second degree, and attempted robbery counts in the indictment were dismissed Monday on motion of Attorney Bruhn after Albert had entered a plea of guilty to possession of the revolver without a permit.

Two Kingston Men Hurt in Accident

Two Kingston men escaped with slight injuries early Sunday morning from their overturned car as it lay in the East Branch of the Delaware river at Margaretville. The 1952 Buick, driven by Daniel Chester Amorosi, 30, of 108 Broadway, missed a sharp right turn on Route 28, slid along a dirt road for 150 feet, then plunged 30 feet into the rain-swollen water. Amorosi and his passenger, John William Carter of 45 Jarrold street, were forced to kick out the windshield in order to escape. They were treated at the Margaretville hospital for finger abrasions and body bruises. Amorosi was later given a summons on a charge of driving at a dangerous speed. It is returnable Saturday before Peace Justice Donald Fenton in Margaretville. Trooper Fred Baessler of the Margaretville state police sub-station made the investigation.

Wilson Sees U. S.

from all military installations and offices.

Regarding the likelihood of atomic attack, Wilson said:

Militarily Strong

"We are militarily strong enough to deter aggression, and the Russians are not going to start a war by dropping a bomb on us when they know there is going to be immediate and massive retaliation."

Questioned about the percentage of attacking Russian planes that could get through to American targets, Wilson said it would depend on what time of day an attack was started, how much warning could be obtained and "whether they did it now or three years from now."

Wilson said "close to 10 per cent of Department of Defense expenditures for military functions in the fiscal year 1955 will be for continental defense," which he said was "narrowly defined" as units having primary missions to defend the continental United States.

The secretary said other units likely would play a defensive role in the event of an attack.

Local Dealer Honored

A Gold Seal of Commendation has been awarded by the Automobile Club of New York to Old Capital Motors, Inc., for its participation in the high school driver education program during the school year 1953-54. In a letter to George N. Shivery, local dealer, it was pointed out that the commendation was for "outstanding community service" in providing a dual control training car for use by students enrolled in the driver education course of New Paltz High School.

The danger that the Moslems might conquer Europe was continually present from 622 to 1638 when they were turned back from the siege of Vienna.

Ice Box Hazards May Bring Fine

Albany, April 20 (AP)—After July 1, anyone abandoning an icebox or refrigerator that might prove a death trap for children at play will be subject to a fine.

Gov. Dewey signed legislation yesterday to require the removal of the door, lid, hinges or fasteners of discarded freezers.

Thomas Tries to Win Back Seat in Congress

Newark, N. J., April 20 (AP)—Former Rep. J. Parnell Thomas, jailed during his last House term, today tries to win Republican nomination to his old seat in Congress on a pro-McCarthy platform.

Thomas' bid for a political comeback in the wake of a prison term for pocketing Congressional payroll kickbacks in 1949 features an otherwise tame New Jersey primary election.

The 59-year-old politician-publisher is running against incumbent Rep. William B. Widnall (R-NJ) in the rural Seventh District.

Widnall has the support of party organizations.

The Thomas-Widnall race and statewide referenda on bingo and raffles have generated the lion's share of pre-primary fireworks.

Polls were opened at 7 a. m. and will close at 8 p. m.

Only two other incumbents besides Widnall—Reps. Alfred D. Sieminski, Democrat, and Frank C. Osmers, Republican—face primary opposition, and that from figures new to the national scene. In all, there are eight party contests for the state's 14 House posts.

Major party nominees for the Senate are unopposed.

Thomas, who said he "never once" met Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy and would only know him from his pictures, has campaigned on a pledge of "1,000 per cent" support of the Wisconsin Republican and his Communist-hunting methods.

After he was paroled and pardoned, he turned to the publishing business and now operates three weekly newspapers in and around his hometown of Allendale.

Thomas, the candidate, has waged an active campaign.

Roosevelt Plans

holdings and income available to Mrs. Roosevelt and their three children. In her separate maintenance suit she said he agreed in a 1945 letter to a similar 50-50 arrangement if they did not reconcile, but in the current litigation Roosevelt has claimed that letter was not a binding contract.

Another letter, from Mrs. Roosevelt's lawyer to her husband's attorney, was quoted as saying: "Your client has no immediate plans for remarriage, as we understand, and neither does ours."

Democratic National Chairman Stephen Mitchell suggested that Roosevelt drop his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the 26th California district in view of his marital troubles.

His wife, whom he married in 1941 after she had been his nurse during his stay in a hospital, charged in her suit for separate maintenance that he had confessed in a 1945 letter infidelities with nine women. Roosevelt denied any such infidelities and said he had admitted them in a letter to her only to spare his father, then President, the worrry of her threatened divorce suit.

Roosevelt's notice to amend his suit into a divorce action said he took the course "in view of the irreconciliable differences which have arisen between the defendant and the plaintff."

He said his offer of a compromise property settlement was made in the interest of the three young children of the couple and their general welfare and to prevent publicity unfavorable to both parties and a public airing of their past domestic difficulties.

The children are James, Jr., 8; Michael, 7, and Anna Eleanor, 6.

Won't Serve Time On Gun Charge

James Albert, 23, of 13 Washington Place, Newburgh, entered a plea of guilty to illegal possession of a firearm, Monday afternoon in County Court. Louis G. Bruhn appeared for the defendant. Judge Cashin suspended imposition of sentence.

Albert, who is employed as a truck driver, was arrested by Ellenville State Police at Newburgh on complaint of Austin Lyons of Granite, who charged Albert had come to his place on March 4 and demanded money. Lyons told the police the man had been at his place once before but he did not know his name. He charged the man had insisted Lyons had money hidden in the place. When Lyons denied this it was alleged Albert had seized Lyons by the throat. Later he left the place and returned with a .32 calibre gun and threatened Lyons, according to the complaint. However he left when informed Lyons had no money. Albert was arrested a few days later and held for grand jury action.

The assault, second degree, and attempted robbery counts in the indictment were dismissed Monday on motion of Attorney Bruhn after Albert had entered a plea of guilty to possession of the revolver without a permit.
